NEW QUESTION # 230

What is a functionality of port objects in Cisco FMC?

- A. to mix transport protocols when setting both source and destination port conditions in a rule
- B. to represent protocols other than TCP, UDP, and ICMP
- C. to represent all protocols in the same way
- D. to add any protocol other than TCP or UDP for source port conditions in access control rules.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 231

While configuring FTD, a network engineer wants to ensure that traffic passing through the appliance does not require routing or Vlan rewriting. Which interface mode should the engineer implement to accomplish this task?

- A. Inline set
- B. passive
- C. Inline tap
- D. transparent

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 232

A network engineer is extending a user segment through an FTD device for traffic inspection without creating another IP subnet. How is this accomplished on an FTD device in routed mode?

- A. by assigning an inline set interface
- B. by using a BVI and create a BVI IP address in the same subnet as the user segment
- C. by leveraging the ARP to direct traffic through the firewall
- D. by bypassing protocol inspection by leveraging pre-filter rules

Answer: B

Explanation:

You can have here BVI with no name and in that way the BVI acts as transparent firewall. So with that you have extended LAN network, the Gateway stays the same (ex. GW is 192.168.1.1 and BVI is 192.168.1.2) so nothing changes for users. If you go with Inline, you do not extend network, Inline only has inline pair interfaces and that does not extend the LAN.
