NEW QUESTION # 366

Which two are required by IPSec in transport mode? (Choose two.)

- A. NAT Traversal
- B. DH-group 20 (ECP-384 bits)
- C. Auto generated key
- D. IKEv1

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

https://docs.paloaltonetworks.com/pan-os/11-0/pan-os-new-features/networking-features/ipsec-transport-mode The linked documentation outlines new features for IPSec transport mode in PAN-OS 11.0 and clarifies the requirements for configuring IPSec in transport mode. Based on this:
* Auto-Generated Key:
* The documentation specifies that IPSec in transport mode requires an auto-generated key during the IKE negotiation process. This ensures the integrity and encryption of the communication channel.
* Verdict: Correct.
* NAT Traversal:
* NAT Traversal is only relevant when NAT is present between the IPSec peers. It is not an inherent requirement for IPSec transport mode.
* Verdict: Not correct.
* IKEv1:
* While IKE (v1 or v2) is required for IPSec, the question specifically asks for transport mode requirements, and IKEv1 is not listed as a strict transport mode requirement in the documentation.
* Verdict: Not correct.
* DH-group 20 (ECP-384 bits):
* The documentation mentions that DH-group 20 (Elliptic Curve Protocol, 384-bit) is one of the required Diffie-Hellman groups for transport mode. This ensures secure key exchange.
* Verdict: Correct.
Correct Answer
Based on the documentation: A. Auto Generated Key
D: DH-group 20 (ECP-384 bits)
Why This Answer is Correct
* Auto-generated key is fundamental to secure communication in transport mode, as stated in the PAN- OS 11.0 documentation.
* DH-group 20 ensures a high level of cryptographic strength for key exchange, making it a specific requirement for transport mode in this context.
