ISTQB Certified Tester Foundation Level (CTFL v4.0) Sample Questions (Q142-Q147):

NEW QUESTION # 142
Which of the following is true about Oracles?

- A. Oracles are derived from the design
- B. Sometimes old version of a product can be used as an Oracle
- C. Oracles can be generated automatically using data generators
- D. Oracles help in reproducing the irreproducible bugs

Answer: B

Explanation:
An oracle is a mechanism or source that can provide the expected result for a given test input or situation.
Sometimes old version of a product can be used as an oracle, if it is assumed that the old version behaves correctly for the test cases that are executed on the new version. This is also known as back-to-back testing.
Oracles do not help in reproducing the irreproducible bugs, as they only provide the expected results, not the actual results. Oracles are not derived from the design, but from the requirements or specifications. Oracles cannot be generated automatically using data generators, as data generators only provide test inputs, not test outputs. NEW QUESTION # 143
Which ONE of the following options explains a benefit of independent testing the BEST?

- A. Developers may lose a sense of responsibility for the quality of the product they develop.
- B. The testers can be isolated from the development team and thus avoid acquiring the same bias as the developers.
- C. Independent testers may lack information regarding the test object.
- D. Independent testers are likely to recognize different types of failures compared to developers.

Answer: D

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation:
Independent testers provide a fresh perspective and are more likely to identify failures that developers might overlook due to their familiarity with the software (C). Independent testing helps avoid cognitive biases, improves defect detection, and enhances the overall quality assurance process. While A and D touch on related concepts, they do not directly define the benefit as well as C does. Option B highlights a potential challenge rather than a benefit.

NEW QUESTION # 144
Which of the following provides the BEST description of statement coverage?

- A. A black-box test technique which uses a state table to derive test cases
- B. A white-box test technique which focuses on the percentage of executable statements that has been executed by a test suite
- C. A white-box test technique which covers the decision results which determine the next statement to be executed
- D. An experience-based test technique in which test cases are based on the tester's knowledge of past failures

Answer: B

Explanation:

Statement coverage is a white-box test technique which focuses on executing all possible statements in the code at least once during testing. This helps in determining the percentage of executable statements that have been executed by the test suite, aiming to ensure that all parts of the program have been tested at least once (ISTQB Main Web).References:

NEW QUESTION # 145

During iteration planning, a scrum team uses an estimation technique called planning poker to estimate the effort required to deliver a critical user story. In advance of the estimation session, the team agreed on some ground rules to limit the number of poker rounds and save time.
The team agreed on the following:
1. They will use the following progression for estimation: Extra-small, Small, Medium, Large, Extra-large, and Extra-extra-large.
2. If estimation values differ significantly, the highest score will be used for estimation purposes.
The result of the first round of planning poker:
Team Member Estimation
Business Large
Development Extra-extra-large
Testing Extra-extra-large
Which of the following options best represent the team's next actions?

- A. The pre-agreed rules state that the highest score should be used for estimation, resulting in the user story being categorised as Extra-extra-large.
- B. Since the business representative is likely to have the most informed view of the requirement, the user story is categorised as a Large.
- C. the team discusses the differences in the estimates and repeats the poker round until an agreemet is reached.
- D. The fact that all estimations are high indicate that the user story is not well understood or should be broken down into multiple smaller stories.

Answer: C

Explanation:
In a planning poker session, if there is a significant difference in the estimations, it indicates that there may be misunderstandings or different perspectives on the complexity of the user story. According to the agile principles, the team should discuss these differences to reach a common understanding. The goal is to ensure that all team members have a shared understanding of the user story's scope and complexity before finalizing the estimate.

NEW QUESTION # 146

An agile software development organization has recently hired a senior tester. The organization has distributed teams spread across time zones. They need to share test status with various stakeholders including upper management and customers at a regular interval. Which of the following statements seems to be correct with regards to the communication?

- A. Since the stakeholders include upper management, formal reports delivered face-to-face are critical.
- B. Distributed nature of teams working in various time zones means email communication will work better
- C. Agile nature of the project means very less documentation and hence the status need not be documented and shared in a formal manner
- D. Since the stakeholders include customers frequent informal communication without a specific frequency works better.

Answer: B
