NEW QUESTION # 126

What is the optimum group size for brainstorming?

- A. It doesn't matter how many individuals as long as the project manager is included
- B. The more individuals the better
- C. Six to eight individuals who represent a range of backgrounds
- D. A maximum of three individuals with a deep knowledge of the subject

Answer: C

Explanation:

The optimum group size for brainstorming is six to eight individuals who represent a range of backgrounds and experiences with the topic. This size is considered ideal because it allows for a diverse set of ideas and perspectives, while still being manageable enough to ensure that everyone has an opportunity to contribute. Having participants from varied backgrounds enhances the creative process by introducing different viewpoints and experiences, thereby enriching the brainstorming session and leading to a broader range of innovative solutions .

NEW QUESTION # 127

NEW QUESTION # 129

When planning elicitation activities, which technique could be used to determine the possible participants and their roles?

- A. Roles and permissions matrix
- B. Data mining
- C. Risk analysis and management
- D. Stakeholder list, map, or personas

Answer: D

Explanation:

When planning elicitation activities, the technique of using a stakeholder list, map, or personas is crucial for determining the possible participants and their roles. This approach helps in identifying all the stakeholders who may have an interest in the project or who may be affected by its outcome. By creating a visual representation or a detailed list of stakeholders, business analysts can understand the relationships, influence, and needs of each stakeholder, ensuring that all relevant perspectives are considered during the elicitation process.

References: The use of stakeholder lists, maps, or personas as a technique in business analysis is supported by various resources on elicitation techniques, which emphasize the importance of understanding stakeholders to ensure successful elicitation activities¹²³.
