AVIXA Certified Technology Specialist Sample Questions (Q152-Q157):

NEW QUESTION # 152

By code, projection screens should be positioned in a manner that avoids blocking

- A. alarm indicators, clocks, and light switches.
- B. paintings, cabinets, and sliding doors.
- C. windows, aquariums, and other glass surfaces.
- D. lines of sight and lectern access.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Projection screens should be positioned to avoid obstructing alarm indicators, clocks, and light switches, as these are critical elements within a room that need to remain accessible and visible. Ensuring they are not blocked helps maintain safety and usability within the space.

CTS Technology Specialist ReferenceAs per CTS guidelines, projection screen placement should consider accessibility and visibility of room elements critical to operation and safety, like alarms and controls.

NEW QUESTION # 153

In a request for proposal (RFP) document, what would be the BEST place to find the overall expectations and contractual requirements for the project?

- A. block diagram
- B. system drawings
- C. bill of materials
- D. scope of work

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Scope of Work (SOW) section in an RFP document outlines the overall expectations and contractual requirements for the project. It provides a detailed description of the work to be performed, including deliverables, timelines, and specific tasks. The SOW ensures that all parties have a clear understanding of the project's objectives and responsibilities, serving as the foundation for the project's execution and management.

NEW QUESTION # 154

Ambient noise PRIMARILY affects desired sound by

- A. interfering with it.
- B. canceling it out.
- C. enhancing it.
- D. complementing it.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive Detailed Explanation with all Technology Specialist References:

Ambient noise is any unwanted background sound that can interfere with the clarity and intelligibility of the desired audio signal. In an AV setting, ambient noise can reduce speech intelligibility, making it harder for the audience to understand the speaker or experience the audio as intended.

Option B, "canceling it out," would refer to techniques like active noise cancellation, which isn't the primary effect of ambient noise on sound but rather a solution to it. Options A and D, "enhancing" and "complementing," are not applicable because ambient noise typically detracts from audio quality rather than adding to it.

NEW QUESTION # 155

When designing an AVB system, ensuring that these are AVB compliant is critical.

- A. network electronics
- B. loudspeakers
- C. displays
- D. microphone cables

Answer: A

Explanation:

When designing an AVB (Audio Video Bridging) system, ensuring that the network electronics (such as switches, routers, and network interface cards) are AVB compliant is critical. AVB is a set of standards developed to facilitate the transmission of audio and video data over Ethernet networks with precise timing and low latency. AVB-compliant network electronics are essential for maintaining the quality and synchronization of audio and video streams in such systems.

NEW QUESTION # 156

While troubleshooting a DSP, the AV technician notices that the DHCP server has failed due to the control system not being able to control the volume of the DSP. In order to restore the same IP, the control programmer requires a unique identifier assigned to the network interface card of the DSP. What is the name of that address?

- A. network address translation
- B. digital multiplex exchange address
- C. internet protocol address
- D. media access control

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive Detailed Explanation with all Technology Specialist References:

The unique identifier assigned to a network interface card (NIC) is known as the Media Access Control (MAC) address. A MAC address is a hardware address that is permanently embedded into the network interface of a device, such as a DSP, and is used to uniquely identify it on a local network.

When DHCP fails, the control programmer may need the MAC address to reassign the same IP address, as DHCP reservations are often based on MAC addresses. This ensures that devices receive a consistent IP address each time they connect, which is crucial for network devices in an AV system that rely on static IPs for control purposes.

Option B, "internet protocol address," refers to the IP address, which is assigned to a device but not unique to the hardware, as it can change over time. Option C, "network address translation," is a method for modifying IP address information as it passes through a router. Option D, "digital multiplex exchange address," is not relevant in this context and does not pertain to IP networking or AV control systems.
