ISACA Certified Data Privacy Solutions Engineer Sample Questions (Q231-Q236):

NEW QUESTION # 231
Which of the following features should be incorporated into an organization's technology stack to meet privacy requirements related to the rights of data subjects to control their personal data?

- A. Providing system engineers the ability to search and retrieve data

- B. Allowing system administrators to manage data access
- C. Establishing a data privacy customer service bot for individuals
- D. Allowing individuals to have direct access to their data

Answer: D

Explanation:
Any organization collecting information about EU residents is required to operate with transparency in collecting and using their personal information. Chapter III of the GDPR defines eight data subject rights that have become foundational for other privacy regulations around the world:
Right to access personal data. Data subjects can access the data collected on them.

NEW QUESTION # 232
Which of the following is the BEST way to ensure privacy is embedded into the training of an AI model?

- A. By posting a privacy notice before login
- B. By obtaining consent from individuals to use their data
- C. By using de-identified data
- D. By using synthetic data

Answer: D

Explanation:
Synthetic data is generated artificially to mimic patterns without containing real personal data, making it the strongest method to embed privacy by design in AI training. De-identification (A) reduces but does not eliminate reidentification risk; consent (B) addresses lawfulness, not privacy-preserving training; privacy notices (D) provide transparency but not technical risk reduction. "Synthetic data allows AI model training without exposing real personal information."

NEW QUESTION # 233
What is the PRIMARY means by which an organization communicates customer rights as it relates to the use of their personal information?

- A. Mailing rights documentation to customers
- B. Publishing a privacy notice
- C. Gaining consent when information is collected
- D. Distributing a privacy rights policy

Answer: B

Explanation:
The primary means by which an organization communicates customer rights as it relates to the use of their personal information is publishing a privacy notice. A privacy notice is a document that informs the customers about how the organization collects, uses, shares, and protects their personal information, and what rights and choices they have regarding their data4. A privacy notice is a legal requirement under many data protection laws and regulations, such as the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), or the Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA)5 . A privacy notice is also a good practice to demonstrate the organization's commitment to transparency, accountability, and customer trust. Reference:

NEW QUESTION # 234
Which of the following is the BEST way for an organization to limit potential data exposure when implementing a new application?

- A. Encrypt all data used by the application.
- B. Use only the data required by the application.

- C. Capture the application's authentication logs.
- D. Implement a data loss prevention (DLP) system.

Answer: B

Explanation:
Explanation
The principle of data minimization states that personal data should be adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary in relation to the purposes for which they are processed. By using only the data required by the application, the organization can reduce the amount of data that is collected, stored, processed and potentially exposed. This can also help the organization comply with privacy laws and regulations that require data minimization, such as the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA).

NEW QUESTION # 235
Which of the following is the PRIMARY benefit of implementing policies and procedures for system hardening?

- A. It reduces external threats to data.
- B. It eliminates attack motivation for data.
- C. It increases system resiliency.
- D. It reduces exposure of data.

Answer: C

Explanation:
Explanation
System hardening is a process of applying security measures and configurations to a system to reduce its attack surface and enhance its resistance to threats. System hardening can include disabling unnecessary services, removing default accounts, applying patches and updates, enforcing strong passwords and encryption, and implementing firewalls and antivirus software. The primary benefit of system hardening is that it increases system resiliency, which is the ability of a system to withstand or recover from adverse events that could affect its functionality or performance. The other options are not the primary benefits of system hardening, although they may be secondary benefits or outcomes. System hardening does not necessarily reduce external threats to data, as threats can originate from various sources and vectors. System hardening may reduce exposure of data, but only if the data is stored or processed by the system. System hardening does not eliminate attack motivation for data, as attackers may have different motives and incentives for targeting data. , p. 91-92 References: : CDPSE Review Manual (Digital Version)
