Medical Tests American Academy of Professional Coders: Certified Professional Coder Sample Questions (Q103-Q108):

NEW QUESTION # 103

The laboratory collected blood to test the patient's carbon dioxide, chloride, potassium, sodium, and glucose levels. Select the CPT codes that the laboratory will report.

- A. 80053-52
- B. 80051, 82947
- C. 80051, 80053
- D. 80051, 82947-59

Answer: B

Explanation:

It would not be appropriate to add modifier 52 to 80053 in answer A. In answer C, 80051 and 80053 would not be reported together because CPT guidelines state that "when or more panel codes include the same tests, report the panel with the highest number of tests in common." Because the glucose test is not included in 80051, 82947 would be added to 80051, with no modifier 59, because the procedures are routinely billed together, thus eliminating answer D.

NEW QUESTION # 104

When seen next to a diagnosis code, the term "Excludes 20" indicates that the condition excluded is not part of the condition represented by the code and that the patient may have both conditions simultaneously.

- A. b False
- B. True

Answer: B

Explanation:

The statement is true. The term "Excludes 2" shows that two seemingly related conditions can be billed in the same encounter. See Section I of the Coding Guidelines in the ICD-IO-CM 2020 edition for reference.

NEW QUESTION # 105

A urologist performs a laparoscopic adrenalectomy and excises a retroperitoneal mass in the same session. How should this be coded?

- A. 60650-22
- B. 0
- C. 1
- D. 60650, 49203-51

Answer: A

Explanation:

CPT 60650 describes a laparoscopic adrenalectomy with a biopsy but not the complete removal of a retroperitoneal mass. In contrast, adding modifier 22 indicates increased work and complexity and can be used because there is no CPT to describe a laparoscopic retroperitoneal mass resection. CPT 49329 represents an unlisted laparoscopy procedure that can be used to describe the removal of a retroperitoneal mass but would have to be used in conjunction with CPT 60650 to describe the adrenalectomy procedure. CPT 60545 describes an adrenalectomy with excision of a retroperitoneal mass by means of an abdominal or posterior incision. CPT 49203 also does not describe the procedure because it involves an open excision of an intra-abdominal tumor.

NEW QUESTION # 106

It is appropriate to use a HCPCS Level II G code, as opposed to a CPT code, to report a screening service performed on an asymptomatic patient.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: B

Explanation:

The statement is true. G codes apply to various healthcare screenings. If a patient is experiencing any symptoms that initiate the encounter, it then becomes diagnostic, and an appropriate CPT code would be selected instead.

NEW QUESTION # 107

Which is NOT a violation of Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA)?

- A. An employee drops off patient records on a physician's porch.
- B. A hospital with a multilayered cybersecurity defense experiences a data breach by a cybercriminal.
- C. An encrypted laptop is stolen from a physician's vehicle.
- D. An office does not perform a risk assessment of electronic health information.

Answer: B

Explanation:

HIPAA is in place to reduce the level of risk associated with a potential violation and/or breach. In answer C, even though a breach has occurred, the hospital has appropriate preventative measures in place and is not in violation of HIPAA. Leaving a laptop in an unattended vehicle or medical records outside is high-risk behavior that gives opportunity for an unauthorized person to access protected health information (PHI) and/or electronic protected health. In answer D, a medical practice is required to perform a risk analysis to PHI and/or ePHI and rectify any failures within a timely manner.
