Scrum Professional Scrum Product Owner II Sample Questions (Q63-Q68):

NEW QUESTION # 63

You are a Product Owner hired to take the lead on a new company initiative. As the one responsible for the success of the Product, you are responsible for creating, managing, and owning the Product Vision.

Which is the best approach for defining the Product Vision? (choose the best answer)

- A. Collaborate with your stakeholders, Scrum Team, customers and users to develop an initial Product Vision that clear and inspiring. Iterate and improve it over time.

- B. Fully formulate the Product Backlog first and then define the Product Vision based on the "must have" features.
- C. Take some time alone to focus on what the vision should look like and present it to the steering committee for approval.
- D. Have your stakeholders, Scrum Team, customers and users submit different Product Visions. When enough suggestions have been collected, facilitate a session to vote on the best one. This creates a formal agreement to protect the Product Vision from changing during development.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 64

The only person who can abnormally terminate a Sprint is?
(choose the best answer)

- A. The Scrum Master.
- B. The Stakeholders.
- C. The Developers.
- D. The Product Owner.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Scrum Guide specifies that only the Product Owner has the authority to cancel a Sprint. This is because the Product Owner is responsible for maximizing the value of the product and may decide to cancel a Sprint if the Sprint Goal becomes obsolete or if they foresee that the current direction will not lead to a valuable outcome.

NEW QUESTION # 65

Peter, a young member, has been assigned to a mature Scrum Team. He is surprised why the Product Owner keeps paying attention to the technical debt. He supposes it should be the Developers's responsibility.
What is the best explanation? (choose the best answer).

- A. The Product Owner concerns the technical debt because it might impact the delivering value and the product's cost.
- B. The Product Owner, is used to be a developer, might have a basic understanding of programming. Observing the technical debt could refresh her/his knowledge, and it is useful to develop the product's strategy.
- C. Peter is correct. The Product Owner should not concern the technical debt.
- D. The Product Owner must report the technical debt's status to stakeholders every Sprint Review.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 66

As a Product Owner, you have sufficient data showing the outcome of the last release. The information shows that very few people are utilizing the new functionality and a number of features are never being used.
Which of the following actions could you take to further evaluate this unexpected result? (choose all that apply)

- A. Run experiments to increase your understanding of your customer needs.
- B. Evaluate whether the features are solving the intended problems.
- C. Spend more time talking with your users to understand their needs.
- D. Turn off the features that are never used and seek more user feedback.

Answer: A,B,C

NEW QUESTION # 67

Which of the following statements about the Product Backlog are true?
(choose the best two answers)

- A. The Product Backlog represents the input of all stakeholders and eliminates any
- B. The Product Backlog should be visible to the Scrum Team and stakeholders.

- C. The Product Backlog is ordered by the Product Owner.
- D. All Product Backlog items must be identified before the first Sprint begins.
- E. Only the Product Owner can place items on the Product Backlog.
- F. All Product Backlog items must be expressed as user stories.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

need for the Developers to speak to stakeholders.

Explanation:

The Product Backlog is an ordered list of what is needed to improve the product, and it is the single source of work undertaken by the Scrum Team. The Product Owner is responsible for ordering the Product Backlog items by value, risk, priority, and dependencies. The Product Backlog should be transparent and accessible to the Scrum Team and the stakeholders, so that everyone can understand the scope and progress of the product development. Therefore, options A and B are true statements about the Product Backlog.

Option C is not true because the Product Backlog items can be expressed in various formats, such as user stories, use cases, scenarios, or any other way that clearly conveys the intent and value of the item. User stories are a common and useful technique, but not a mandatory one.

Option D is not true because the Product Backlog is not a fixed and complete specification of the product, but rather an emergent and dynamic artifact that evolves over time. The Product Backlog items are refined and clarified by the Product Owner and the Developers throughout the product development process, and new items can be added or removed as needed. The Product Backlog does not need to be fully defined before the first Sprint begins, but only enough to support the first Sprint Planning.

Option E is not true because the Product Owner is not the only source of ideas and requirements for the product. The Product Owner collaborates with the Developers and the stakeholders to discover, validate, and prioritize the Product Backlog items. The Product Owner may delegate the authority to add items to the Product Backlog to others, but remains accountable for the ordering and the value of the Product Backlog.

Option F is not true because the Product Backlog does not replace the communication and collaboration between the Developers and the stakeholders. The Product Backlog represents the input of all stakeholders, but it is not a substitute for direct feedback and interaction. The Developers need to engage with the stakeholders to understand their needs, expectations, and feedback, and to deliver a valuable product increment that meets the Sprint Goal and the Definition of Done.
