- A. Start a free trial via Billing Portal.
- B. Open a support case with Nutanix.
- C. Navigate to cloud.nutanix.com
- D. Create a My Nutanix account

Answer: D

Explanation:

* Before accessing the Nutanix Cloud Clusters (NC2) console, the first step is to create a My Nutanix account.

* This account serves as the primary gateway for managing and accessing Nutanix services, including NC2.

* Once the account is created, users can log in to the Nutanix portal, where they can manage their subscriptions, start trials, and access various Nutanix services, including the NC2 console.

Refer to the Nutanix documentation on getting started with NC2 and the My Nutanix account creation process.

NEW QUESTION # 113

What new AWS subnets should the Network team advise require creation for a brand new AWS region when deploying Flow Virtual Networking (FVN) on an NC2 cluster?

- A. Prism Central Subnet and FVN subnets
- B. VPC Carrier subnet and Prism Central subnet
- C. FVN Overlay External Subnet and Prism Central subnet
- D. FVN NAT subnet and FVN No-NAT subnet

Answer: C

Explanation:

When establishing a landing zone in a brand new AWS region for NC2 with Flow Virtual Networking (FVN), the network team must provision specific subnets to support the management plane and the transit architecture. The first essential component is the FVN Overlay External Subnet, which resides within the Transit VPC and acts as the entry/exit point for traffic moving between the overlay network and external environments like the internet or on-premises data centers. The second requirement is a dedicated Prism Central subnet, which is necessary to host the Prism Central instance that will manage the NC2 clusters within that region. These subnets provide the structural foundation for the software-defined networking overlay, ensuring that management traffic is properly segregated from user workload traffic and that the transit gateway logic has a designated physical network path.

Gateway Endpoints support services such as Amazon S3 and DynamoDB and are ideal for scenarios where private connectivity to these services is needed.

Reference:

Refer to the AWS documentation on VPC endpoints, specifically Gateway Endpoints, and the Nutanix documentation on configuring private connectivity for NC2 deployments.
