Cisco Securing Networks with Cisco Firepower Sample Questions (Q209-Q214):

NEW QUESTION # 209

With Cisco Firepower Threat Defense software, which interface mode must be configured to passively receive traffic that passes through the appliance?

- A. inline set
- B. passive
- C. routed
- D. inline tap

Answer: D

Explanation:

With tap mode, the FTD is deployed inline, but the network traffic flow is undisturbed. Instead, the FTD makes a copy of each packet so that it can analyze the packets. Note that rules of these types do generate intrusion events when they are triggered, and the table view of intrusion events indicates that the triggering packets would have dropped in an inline deployment. There are benefits to using tap mode with FTDs that are deployed inline.

NEW QUESTION # 210

An administrator is creating interface objects to better segment their network but is having trouble adding interfaces to the objects. What is the reason for this failure?

- A. The interfaces are being used for NAT for multiple networks.
- B. The administrator is adding interfaces of multiple types.
- C. The interfaces belong to multiple interface groups.
- D. The administrator is adding an interface that is in multiple zones.

Answer: B

Explanation:

All interfaces in an interface object must be of the same type: all inline, passive, switched, routed, or ASA FirePOWER. After you create an interface object, you cannot change the type of interfaces it contains.
