NEW QUESTION # 630

The Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) protocol addresses the confidentiality of a message through:

- A. hash function.
- B. digital signature certificates.
- C. symmetric encryption.
- D. message authentication code.

Answer: C

Explanation:

SSL uses a symmetric key for message encryption. A message authentication code is used for ensuring data integrity. Hash function is used for generating a message digest; it does not use public key encryption for message encryption. Digital signature certificates are used by SSL for server authentication.

NEW QUESTION # 631

An IS auditor is reviewing the perimeter security design of a network. Which of the following provides the GREATEST assurance outgoing Internet traffic is controlled?

- A. Load balancer
- B. Stateful firewall
- C. Intrusion detection system (IDS)
- D. Security information and event management (SIEM) system

Answer: B

Explanation:

A stateful firewall provides the greatest assurance that outgoing Internet traffic is controlled, as it monitors and filters packets based on their source, destination and connection state. A stateful firewall can prevent unauthorized or malicious traffic from leaving the network, as well as block incoming traffic that does not match an established connection. An intrusion detection system (IDS) can detect and alert on suspicious or anomalous traffic, but it does not block or control it. A security information and event management (SIEM) system can collect and analyze logs and events from various sources, but it does not directly control traffic. A load balancer can distribute traffic among multiple servers, but it does not filter or monitor it. References: CISA ReviewManual (Digital Version), Chapter 6, Section 6.2
