A nurse is filling out an incident report after an older adult client fell while attempting to transfer from her bed to a commode. Which health problem should the nurse consider when client falls occur? - orthostatic hypotension

Orthostatic hypotension is associated with weakness or fainting when one rises to an erect position. Hypertension and dyspnea do not typically result in loss of balance and/or consciousness. Dyspnea is difficult or labored breathing. Essential or primary hypertension is high blood pressure. Secondary hypertension (secondary high blood pressure) is high blood pressure that's caused by another medical condition.

When assessing an infant's axillary temperature, it will be: - 1°F (0.5°C) lower than an oral temperature.

Rectal temperatures may be 1°F (0.5°C) higher than oral temperatures and axillary temperatures are 1°F (0.5°C) lower than oral temperatures.

A nurse is assessing an apical pulse on a cardiac client. The client is taking digoxin. The nurse can anticipate that the digoxin will: - decrease the apical pulse.

Certain cardiac medications, such as digoxin, decrease the heart rate.

Which pulse site is generally used in emergency situations? - carotid

The carotid artery is lightly palpated to obtain a pulse in emergency assessments, such as in a client in shock or cardiac arrest. The brachial pulse site is used for infants who have had a cardiac arrest. The apical pulse is the fifth intercostal space for adults and the fourth intercostal space for a young child or infant. Using a stethoscope at the apex of the heart, a nurse can assess the lub dub of the heart sounds.

EXIN Certified Data Centre Professional (CDCP) Sample Questions (Q54-Q59):

NEW QUESTION # 54

The temperature and humidity values indicated on the display of the Computer room air conditioner unit are the values measured at which point?

- A. It is the value measured at the exhaust (outlet) of the air conditioner.
- B. It is the average value between the intake and exhaust (outlet) of the air conditioner.
- C. It is the value measured at the front of the rack of the aisle the air conditioner is situated.
- D. It is the value measured at the intake of the air conditioner.

Answer: D

Explanation:

According to the IBM document on temperature and humidity design criteria¹, the temperature and humidity values indicated on the display of the computer room air conditioner unit are the values measured at the intake of the air conditioner. This is because the intake is where the air conditioner draws the air from the computer room and cools and dehumidifies it before sending it back to the computer room. The display shows the current conditions of the computer room air, which are used to adjust the cooling and dehumidifying operations of the air conditioner. The values measured at the exhaust (outlet) of the air conditioner are not displayed, as they are not relevant for the computer room environment. The values measured at the front of the rack of the aisle the air conditioner is situated are also not displayed, as they may vary depending on the distance and location of the rack. The average value between the intake and exhaust (outlet) of the air conditioner is not displayed, as it does not reflect the actual conditions of the computer room air or the air conditioner performance.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 57

Escape route signage should be placed where?

- A. At every door providing a pathway
- B. At every door including riser doors, doors of storage closets etc.
- C. Only at emergency escape doors
- D. Only at the main entrance of the data centre building

Answer: A

Explanation:

Escape route signage should be placed at every door providing a pathway to the exit or the assembly area, according to the CDCP Preparation Guide¹ and the EU Safety/Health Signs Directive². Escape route signage is used to guide the occupants of the data centre from wherever they are in the building, via a place of relative safety (the escape route), to the place of ultimate safety (the assembly area). Escape route signage should not be limited to only emergency escape doors or the main entrance of the data centre building, as these may not be accessible or visible from all locations. Escape route signage should also not include doors that do not lead to the exit or the assembly area, such as riser doors, doors of storage closets, or doors of other rooms, as these may confuse or mislead the occupants. Escape route signage should be placed at every door that provides a pathway to the exit or the assembly area, and should indicate the direction and distance of the escape route using pictograms, arrows, and words. Escape route signage should also be designed and installed in accordance with the relevant standards and codes, such as BS 5499 and ISO 7010.

NEW QUESTION # 58

Which one of the following is an Audible Signaling and Notification Device?

- A. Alarms
- B. Strobes
- C. Clocks
- D. Sirens

Answer: D

Explanation:

According to the CDCP® Preparation Guide, an audible signaling and notification device is a device that produces a sound to alert or notify the occupants of a data center of an event or condition. Sirens are examples of such devices, as they can emit loud and distinctive tones to warn of fire, emergency, or security incidents.

Strobes, on the other hand, are visual signaling and notification devices that produce flashes of light to attract attention or convey information. Alarms and clocks are not specific types of devices, but rather general terms that can refer to various audible or visual devices.
