Salesforce B2B Commerce for Developers Accredited Professional Sample Questions (Q141-Q146):

NEW QUESTION # 141

Which wire adapter should a developer use to retrieve metadata about a specific picklist?

- A. `getPicklistValues`
- B. `getPicklistMetadataValues`
- C. `getPicklist`
- D. `getPicklistMetadata`

Answer: A

Explanation:

The developer should use the `getPicklistValues` wire adapter to retrieve metadata about a specific picklist. This wire adapter allows the developer to get the picklist values for a specified field on a given object and record type. The wire adapter returns an object that contains the picklist values, the default value, and the controlling field (if any). The developer can use this wire adapter to populate a custom picklist component with the appropriate values based on the object and record type context. The other options are incorrect because they are not valid wire adapters for retrieving picklist metadata.

A query containing a subquery is executed. What is appended to the subquery name as part of its transformation by default in Salesforce B2B Commerce?

- A. The letter "S"
- B. The "*" symbol
- C. "__ccrz"
- D. A subscriber-supplied token

Answer: C

Explanation:

A query containing a subquery is executed. By default, in Salesforce B2B Commerce, "__ccrz" is appended to the subquery name as part of its transformation. This is done to avoid conflicts with the standard Salesforce fields and relationships. For example, `SELECT Id, Name, (SELECT Id, Name FROM Contacts) FROM Account` will be transformed to `SELECT Id, Name, (SELECT Id, Name FROM Contacts__ccrz) FROM Account__ccrz`.

For which two reasons is it preferable to extend the Salesforce B2B Commerce remote invocation object instead of using the standard Salesforce remote action invocation manager (2 answers)

- A. The APEX method called by the remote action will be passed as a Salesforce B2B Commerce context object.
- B. The Salesforce B2B Commerce logger cannot be utilized in standard remote actions
- C. Salesforce B2B Commerce includes do not support standard Salesforce remote actions.
- D. A standard remote action will not have access to Salesforce B2B Commerce objects.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

It is preferable to extend the Salesforce B2B Commerce remote invocation object instead of using the standard Salesforce remote action invocation manager for two reasons:

The APEX method called by the remote action will be passed as a Salesforce B2B Commerce context object, which contains useful information such as the current user, cart, storefront, and configuration settings. This can simplify the development and testing of the remote action.

The Salesforce B2B Commerce logger can be utilized in the remote action, which allows logging messages and errors to the debug log or to a custom object. This can facilitate debugging and troubleshooting of the remote action.

NEW QUESTION # 145

Northern Trail Outfitters (NTO) wants to be able to reference historical data in another system from the Salesforce user experience as read-only, but does not want to import the data into the org or incur storage costs. What is one product feature that could accomplish this?

- A. External Objects
- B. Big Objects
- C. Lightning Out
- D. External SOQL queries in Apex code

Answer: A

Explanation:

The correct answer is External Objects. External objects are similar to custom objects, except that they map to data that's stored outside your Salesforce org<sup>12</sup>. You can use external objects to access data in real time via web service callouts, without copying the data into your org<sup>12</sup>. External objects are read-only by default, but you can enable write operations for some data sources<sup>12</sup>.

Big Objects are not the correct answer. Big objects allow you to store and manage massive amounts of data on the Salesforce platform. However, big objects are not suitable for referencing historical data in another system, as they require importing the data into the org and incur storage costs.

Lightning Out is not the correct answer. Lightning Out is a feature that lets you run Lightning components in any container outside the Salesforce platform. However, Lightning Out does not provide a way to reference historical data in another system, as it is mainly used for embedding Lightning components in other web pages or apps.

External SOQL queries in Apex code are not the correct answer. External SOQL queries are a way to query data from external data sources using SOQL syntax in Apex code. However, external SOQL queries require defining an external data source and an external object first, so they are not a product feature by themselves, but rather a way to use external objects in Apex code.
