NEW QUESTION # 182

A software development company hosts the website <https://dev.company.com> for contractors to share code for projects they are working on with internal developers. The web server is on premises and is protected by a Cisco Secure Firewall Threat Defense appliance. The network administrator is worried about someone trying to transmit infected files to internal users via this site. Which type of policy must be associated with an access control policy to enable Cisco Secure Firewall Malware Defense to detect and block malware?

- A. prefilter policy
- B. SSL policy
- C. network discovery policy
- D. file policy

Answer: D

Explanation:

To enable Cisco Secure Firewall Malware Defense to detect and block malware transmitted through a web server, you must associate a file policy with an access control policy.

A file policy is a set of configurations that the Secure Firewall uses to inspect files in network traffic for malware. By associating file policies with access control rules, the firewall inspects files before allowing them through, enabling detection and blocking of malware in transmitted files.

This is essential for controlling file-based threats coming from sources like web servers, email, or other vectors.
