CheckPoint Check Point Certified Security Expert - R82 Sample Questions (Q69-Q74):

NEW QUESTION # 69

Before exporting the R81.20 management server's database to upgrade it to R82, you must run the pre-upgrade verification process. How would you do this?

- A. $FWDIR/bin/upgrade_tools/migrate verify -v R82
- B. $FWDIR/scripts/migrate_server verify -v R82
- C. $FWDIR/bin/upgrade_tools/migrate export -verify version R82
- D. fw ctl get int fw_upgrade_R82_readiness_check

Answer: B

Explanation:

The command $FWDIR/scripts/migrate_server verify -v R82 runs the pre-upgrade verification process, checking that the current management server is ready for an upgrade to R82 by validating installed tools and system compatibility.

NEW QUESTION # 70

Which command will allow an administrator to manually load policy files on the gateway?

- A. fw fetch
- B. load
- C. fw install
- D. policy

Answer: A

Explanation:

The correct answer is A. The fw fetch command is used on a Security Gateway to fetch the Security Policy from a specified host, typically the Security Management Server, and install it into the kernel. The R82 CLI Reference Guide states that fw fetch "fetches the Security Policy from the specified host and installs it to the kernel." It can fetch policy from a Management Server listed in $FWDIR/conf/masters, from a specified master, or from a local policy directory on the gateway. Option B is not a valid Check Point policy-loading command in this context. Option C is wrong because fw install is not the gateway-side command used to manually fetch and load policy files. Option D is generic and not a valid CLI command for this task. For exam purposes, remember the direction: Management pushes policy during normal install; Gateway manually retrieves policy using fw fetch. Reference topic: R82 CLI Reference Guide / fw fetch.

NEW QUESTION # 71

Alice wants to upgrade the current Security Management machine to R82, and she wants to check the Deployment Agent status over Gaia Clish. Which of the following Gaia Clish commands is correct?

- A. show uninstaller status
- B. show agent status
- C. show installer status
- D. show installer packages

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is D. In Gaia Clish, CPUSE Deployment Agent status is checked with the show installer status command family. The CPUSE Administration Guide documents show installer status < options > as the command that shows information about the CPUSE Deployment Agent, including status, build number, cloud connectivity, last update time, and license state. The most precise form for the agent state is show installer status agent, but among the provided choices, show installer status is the correct command structure. Option A is not valid Gaia Clish syntax. Option B, show installer packages, lists packages, such as imported or installed packages, but it does not show the Deployment Agent status. Option C is not a valid command for checking CPUSE Deployment Agent status. For the exam, associate CPUSE/Deployment Agent operational checks with the installer command namespace in Gaia Clish: show installer status agent, show installer status all, or the broader show installer status.
