OCPE Pesticide Applicator Category 7A General and Household Pest Control Exam Sample Questions (Q57-Q62):

NEW QUESTION # 57

Swarming ants and termites are similar, but the termite:

- A. Has a narrow waist
- B. Has bent antennae
- C. Does not have a waist

Answer: C

Explanation:

Swarming termites and ants can be distinguished by physical characteristics. Termites do not have a waist, as their body is broad and straight, while ants have a narrow, pinched waist. Additionally, termites have straight antennae, whereas ants have bent (elbowed) antennae. The General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 7: Termites vs. Ants) highlights these differences. Option A (bent antennae) applies to ants, not termites. Option C (narrow waist) also describes ants, not termites.

NEW QUESTION # 58

The most common cause of pesticide poisoning to the applicator is:

- A. Inhalation
- B. Dermal exposure
- C. Oral ingestion

Answer: B

Explanation:

The most common cause of pesticide poisoning for applicators is dermal exposure, where pesticides contact the skin during mixing, application, or cleanup. The General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 3: Pesticide Safety) highlights that skin exposure often occurs during mixing procedures or application, especially if proper protective equipment is not used.

Option A (inhalation) is the second most common cause (see Question 16). Option B (oral ingestion) is less common, typically occurring through accidental ingestion or poor hygiene practices.

NEW QUESTION # 59

The use of check valves ____ to prevent back siphonage.

- A. Is a good idea
- B. Isn't necessary
- C. Is required by New Jersey state law

Answer: C

Explanation:

Back siphonage occurs when pesticide solution is drawn back into the water supply during application, posing a contamination risk. NJDEP regulations (N.J.A.C. 7:30-9.11) mandate the use of check valves or anti-siphon devices to prevent this, making it a legal requirement in New Jersey. The General Pest Management: Guide for Commercial Applicators - Category 7A (Chapter 5: Pesticide Application) also emphasizes this as a standard safety practice. Option A understates the requirement, and Option B is incorrect because it is necessary and legally mandated.

NEW QUESTION # 60

State pesticide regulations regarding pesticide service vehicles require the:

- A. Pesticide storage area be physically separate from the driver or passengers
- B. Commercial pesticide applicator's license number be on the vehicle
- C. MSDS sheets for all pesticides be on board the vehicle

Answer: A

Explanation:

NJDEP regulations (N.J.A.C. 7:30-9.10) require that pesticide service vehicles have a storage area for pesticides that is physically separate from the driver or passenger compartment to prevent exposure in case of spills or leaks. This is a safety measure to protect the driver and ensure compliance with transportation regulations. Option B is incorrect because, while the business registration number is required on the vehicle (see Question 8), the applicator's license number is not. Option C is incorrect because, although having Safety Data Sheets (SDS, formerly MSDS) on board is a best practice, it is not a strict requirement under New Jersey law for service vehicles; SDS sheets must be available at the business location or application site.

NEW QUESTION # 61

The certified commercial pesticide applicator responsible for a commercial pesticide operator must be able to be at the application site within a reasonable amount of time, meaning:

- A. Eight hours
- B. Three hours
- C. 24 hours

Answer: B

Explanation:

In New Jersey, the NJDEP Pesticide Control Program outlines the responsibilities of a certified commercial pesticide applicator supervising a pesticide operator. According to NJDEP regulations (N.J.A.C. 7:30-6.2), a certified applicator must be able to respond to the application site within a "reasonable amount of time" if they are not physically present. The definition of "reasonable" in this context is clarified in training materials and NJDEP guidance as being within three hours to ensure proper oversight, especially in case of emergencies or issues during application. This aligns with the need for timely supervision to ensure compliance with safety and application standards for general and household pest control under Category 7A. Eight hours or 24 hours would be too long to address potential issues effectively, such as spills, misapplications, or safety concerns.
