CompTIA A+ Certification Exam: Core 2 Sample Questions (Q69-Q74):

NEW QUESTION # 69

Which of the following filesystems supports read and write operations for Windows, macOS, and Linux?

- A. ReFS

- B. exFAT
- C. NTFS
- D. APFS
- E. ext4

Answer: B

Explanation:

exFAT is the only listed file system that supports both read and write access across Windows, macOS, and Linux (with appropriate drivers). It's optimized for flash storage and external drives.

From All-in-One Exam Guide:

"exFAT is a lightweight file system with cross-platform read/write support, ideal for use on removable drives when compatibility is essential."

NEW QUESTION # 70

A user needs to test several software replacement possibilities. Part of the process involves installing the different software options on a corporate-imaged sandboxed PC. Which of the following is the best option to allow the user to install the required software?

- A. Add the user to the local Administrators group
- B. Let the user use credentials from another user who has rights
- C. Give the user the local, high-privileged account password
- D. Make the user a member of Domain Admins

Answer: A

Explanation:

The correct answer is B. Add the user to the local Administrators group, because this provides the necessary permissions to install software on a specific machine without granting excessive privileges across the entire domain. This approach follows the principle of least privilege while still allowing the user to perform required testing tasks.

According to the Quentin Docter - CompTIA A+ Complete Study Guide, local administrator rights allow users to install and configure applications on a single system but do not grant access to domain-wide resources. This makes it an appropriate choice for sandboxed or test environments.

The Travis Everett & Andrew Hutz - All-in-One Exam Guide warns against adding users to the Domain Admins group, as this grants full control over the entire Active Directory environment and poses a significant security risk. Sharing credentials or passwords violates security best practices and audit requirements.

The Mike Meyers / Mark Soper Lab Manual reinforces that granting local administrative access is a common and accepted practice in controlled testing scenarios, especially when systems are isolated from production environments.

Because the goal is to allow software installation without compromising domain security, adding the user to the local Administrators group is the best and safest option, making B the correct answer.

NEW QUESTION # 71

An IT manager is planning to deploy a critical security update for a custom business application to all workstations in the organization. To ensure the update does not cause system instability or compatibility issues with existing software, which of the following should the technician perform FIRST?

- A. Peer review
- B. Request forms
- C. Sandbox testing
- D. Backup plan

Answer: C

Explanation:

Before deploying an application update broadly, best practice is to test it in an isolated environment to avoid breaking production systems. The All-in-One guide defines sandbox testing clearly: "a sandbox is a place where you can experiment without messing up the primary system," typically a virtualized environment, and it "entails checking out new and updated applications without putting the systems and data you depend on at risk." That directly aligns with rolling out a new application update across the organization.

Mike Meyers' Lab Manual repeats the same concept: sandbox testing uses an isolated environment and snapshots to test changes safely before production deployment. It's positioned as a documented business process within change-management best practices, reinforcing why it comes early-before impact spreads.

A backup/rollback plan is important too, but the question asks for the first step when applying a new update to everyone. Testing first helps identify compatibility issues, installation failures, and side effects early-so you don't deploy a bad update at scale. Therefore, Sandbox testing (C) is correct.

NEW QUESTION # 72

A user reports getting a BSOD error on their computer at least twice a day. Which of the following should the technician use to determine the cause?

- A. Device Manager
- B. Event Viewer
- C. Performance Monitor
- D. System Information

Answer: B

Explanation:

Event Viewer logs system errors, including the critical events that lead up to and include Blue Screen of Death (BSOD) incidents. By reviewing the "System" and "Application" logs, especially the error entries and any bugcheck codes, you can identify the faulting driver, service, or hardware component responsible for the crashes.

NEW QUESTION # 73

A location is experiencing under-voltage events during peak periods. Which of the following should be deployed at this location?

- A. Proper ventilation
- B. UPS
- C. Surge protector
- D. PDU

Answer: B
