The City Beautiful movement was a result of which of the following?

- A. Olmsted's plan for Central Park
- B. The Chicago World's Fair of 1893
- C. Nash's plan for London
- D. The Hoover Commission Report

Answer: B

Explanation:

The City Beautiful movement emerged from the 1893 Chicago World's Fair (Columbian Exposition), which showcased grand architecture and civic design, inspiring planners to apply these principles to cities. Option A (Chicago World's Fair) is correct. The APA's AICP Certification Exam Content Outline(2022), under

"Fundamental Planning Knowledge," states, "The City Beautiful movement was a direct result of the 1893 Chicago World's Fair, which promoted civic beauty and order." Option B (Hoover Commission Report) relates to government efficiency in the 1940s. Option C (Nash's plan for London) influenced Regency-era planning, not City Beautiful. Option D (Olmsted's Central Park) predates the movement and focuses on naturalistic design. The CPC Study Manual(2024) confirms, "The City Beautiful movement originated from the 1893 Chicago World's Fair," supporting option A.

NEW QUESTION # 129

The green portfolio portion of a municipality's revolving loan fund would be available to which two of the following types of businesses?

- I. Bicycle manufacturer
- II. Compost bin distributor
- III. Affordable housing builder
- IV. Computer manufacturer

- A. II and III
- B. I and II
- C. I and III
- D. I and IV

Answer: B

A green portfolio in a revolving loan fund supports businesses with environmentally sustainable practices.

Option I (bicycle manufacturer) promotes sustainable transportation, reducing emissions. Option II (compost bin distributor) supports waste reduction and sustainability. The APA's AICP Certification Exam Content Outline(2022), under "Areas of Practice," states, "Green portfolio funds typically support businesses like bicycle manufacturers and compost distributors, which align with environmental sustainability goals." Option III (affordable housing builder) focuses on social equity, not necessarily green practices unless specified.

NEW QUESTION # 130

A planning agency is trying to decide whether to fund three new neighborhood service centers. There is some uncertainty about the programmatic content and final size of each center. In designing a potential user-needs survey, the most critical factor is to:

- A. Allow sufficient time to follow up on non-respondents.
- B. Make sure that interviews take less than 25 minutes.
- C. Pretest the questionnaire for workability.
- D. Avoid asking redundant questions.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Given uncertainty about the centers' content and size, the user-needs survey must accurately capture community needs. Option C (pretest the questionnaire for workability) is the most critical factor, ensuring questions are clear, relevant, and effective before full deployment. The APA's AICP Certification Exam Content Outline(2022), under "Research and Assessment Methods," states, "Pretesting a survey for workability is the most critical step when there is uncertainty, ensuring the questionnaire accurately captures needed data." Option A (interview length) is a practical concern but less critical. Option B (follow-up time) addresses response rates, not survey design. Option D (avoid redundancy) is important but secondary to ensuring overall workability. The CPC Study Manual(2024) confirms, "Pretesting is essential in user-needs surveys to ensure clarity and effectiveness," supporting option C. The concepts of vehicular-pedestrian circulation separation, of through traffic on the periphery of superblocks, and of internal park systems were first developed in the United States in the town of:

- A. Reston
- B. Columbia
- C. Radburn
- D. Savannah

Answer: C

Explanation:

These concepts-separating vehicular and pedestrian circulation, routing through traffic around superblocks, and integrating internal park systems-were pioneered in Radburn, New Jersey, in 1929, a planned community designed by Clarence Stein and Henry Wright. Radburn introduced the "Radburn Idea," emphasizing pedestrian safety and green spaces within superblocks. The APA's AICP Certification Exam Content Outline(2022), under "Fundamental Planning Knowledge," states, "Radburn, NJ, was the first U.S. community to implement vehicular-pedestrian separation, peripheral through traffic, and internal park systems." Option A (Columbia) and B (Reston) are later planned communities (1960s) that built on Radburn's ideas. Option D (Savannah, 1733) used a grid with squares but didn't implement these concepts. The CPC Study Manual(2024) confirms, "Radburn introduced these planning principles in 1929, influencing modern community design," supporting option C.
