Huawei HCIP-AI-EI Developer V2.5 Sample Questions (Q42-Q47):

NEW QUESTION # 42

Which of the following statements about the functions of layer normalization and residual connection in the Transformer is true?

- A. Residual connections and layer normalization help prevent vanishing gradients and exploding gradients in deep networks.
- B. Residual connections primarily add depth to the model but do not aid in gradient propagation.
- C. In shallow networks, residual connections are beneficial, but they aggravate the vanishing gradient problem in deep networks.
- D. Layer normalization accelerates model convergence and does not affect model stability.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In Transformers:

* Residual connections help preserve gradient flow through deep networks, mitigating vanishing/exploding gradient issues.

* Layer normalization stabilizes training by normalizing across features, improving convergence speed and training stability. Thus, A is correct, while B, C, and D are incorrect.

Exact Extract from HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5:

"Residual connections and layer normalization stabilize deep network training, prevent gradient issues, and accelerate convergence."

NEW QUESTION # 43

Which of the following are the impacts of the development of large models?

- A. Large models will completely replace small and domain-specific models
- B. Data privacy and security issues will be exacerbated
- C. Model pre-training costs will be reduced
- D. The accuracy and efficiency of natural language processing tasks will improve

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

The emergence of large AI models (e.g., GPT, Pangu, BERT) has led to:

* C: Improved accuracy and efficiency in NLP and other AI tasks because of their ability to capture deep semantic and contextual information.

* D: Increased data privacy and security concerns, as large models require massive datasets which may contain sensitive or proprietary information. A is false - large models increase pre-training costs. B is false - small and domain-specific models still play important roles due to efficiency and deployment constraints.

Exact Extract from HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5:

"Large models improve task performance but raise privacy and security concerns. They do not necessarily reduce training cost or eliminate the need for smaller models." Reference: HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5 Official Study Guide - Chapter: Large Model Trends and Challenges

NEW QUESTION # 44

Which of the following is not an algorithm for training word vectors?

- A. Word2Vec
- B. BERT
- C. TextCNN
- D. FastText

Answer: C

Explanation:

* Word2Vec and FastText are neural network-based algorithms designed for generating dense vector representations of words.

* BERT is a transformer-based language model that also generates contextualized word embeddings.

* TextCNN, however, is a text classification model, not a word vector training algorithm. It uses convolutional neural networks to extract features from already vectorized text but does not learn static word embeddings in the same sense as Word2Vec or FastText.

Exact Extract from HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5:

"Word2Vec, FastText, and BERT can be used to train word embeddings. TextCNN is a classification model that uses embeddings but does not train them as its primary function." Reference:HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5 Official Study Guide - Chapter: Word Vector Representation

NEW QUESTION # 45

John wants to deploy a large model locally to implement the Q&A assistant function for his company. Which of the following factors is unnecessary for John to consider?

- A. Model development framework
- B. Demand for computing power
- C. Output delay
- D. Model security

Answer: A

Explanation:

When deploying a pre-trained large model locally for a specific function, the model development framework used during its creation is generally irrelevant unless modifications or retraining are required. However, John must consider:

- * Output delay- to ensure low latency for real-time Q&A.
- * Model security- to protect intellectual property and sensitive company data.
- * Computing power demand- large models require high-performance hardware.

Exact Extract from HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5:

"When deploying pre-trained models locally, the deployment plan should address computing resources, performance latency, and security, but does not require re-evaluating the original training framework." Reference:HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5 Official Study Guide - Chapter: Large Model Deployment Considerations

NEW QUESTION # 46

Which of the following statements are true about the differences between using convolutional neural networks (CNNs) in text tasks and image tasks?

- A. Color image input is multi-channel, whereas text input is single-channel.
- B. CNNs are suitable for image tasks, but they perform poorly in text tasks.
- C. For CNN, there is no difference in handling text or image tasks.
- D. When the CNN is used for text tasks, the kernel size must be the same as the number of word vector dimensions. This constraint, however, does not apply to image tasks.

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

In CNN usage:

- * A:True - color images have multiple channels (e.g., RGB = 3), while text inputs are represented as sequences of word embeddings, typically single-channel in structure.
- * B:True - in text tasks, the convolution kernel height must match the embedding dimension to capture complete token information, which is not a constraint in images.
- * C:False - there are clear differences in handling between text and image data.
- * D:False - CNNs can perform very well in text classification when used appropriately.

Exact Extract from HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5:

"In text CNNs, convolution kernels span the entire embedding dimension, whereas in image CNNs, kernel size is independent of channel count." Reference:HCIP-AI EI Developer V2.5 Official Study Guide - Chapter: CNN in NLP
