APICS Certified Supply Chain Professional Sample Questions (Q497-Q502):

NEW QUESTION # 497
Which of the following statements about the use of bar code labels for product identification in the supply chain is true?

- A. They can be read by devices 1 to 3 meters from the item.
- B. Each of the trading partners must apply a unique label.
- C. They have been replaced by radio frequency identification tags.
- D. They facilitate the capture of information about the location of items.

Answer: D

Explanation:
Bar code labels are a fundamental tool in the supply chain for product identification and tracking. They facilitate the capture of information about the location of items by providing a quick and accurate method to read and record data about products. Bar codes can be scanned to update inventory systems in real-time, improving visibility and accuracy throughout the supply chain. While RFID technology is becoming more prevalent, bar codes are still widely used due to their low cost and ease of implementation.

NEW QUESTION # 501

The diagram below shows the process of manufacturing of item D and the capacity of each operation. Each operation requires one unit from the previous step.

Which of the following is the total production throughput?

- A. 84 units/hr.
- B. 25 units/hr.
- C. 65 units/hr.
- D. 27 units/hr.

Answer: B

Explanation:
To determine the total production throughput, identify the bottleneck operation, which is the operation with the lowest capacity:
* Operation A: 32 units/hr
* Operation B: 25 units/hr
* Operation C: 40 units/hr
* Operation D: 27 units/hr
Operation B has the lowest capacity at 25 units/hr, making it the bottleneck. The total production throughput is limited by this bottleneck operation, which is 25 units/hr.
