NEW QUESTION # 447

Which of the following deployment models includes application components on a company's network as well as on the Internet?

- A. Private
- B. Public
- C. Hybrid
- D. Community

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 448

Following a risk assessment, a company decides to adopt a multicloud strategy for its IT applications. Which of the following is the company trying to avoid as part of its risk mitigation strategy?

- A. Geo-redundancy
- B. High availability
- C. Vendor lock-in
- D. Data sovereignty

Answer: D

Explanation:

A company that adopts a multicloud strategy for its IT applications is trying to avoid vendor lock-in as part of its risk mitigation strategy. Vendor lock-in is a situation where the customer becomes dependent on a single cloud provider and faces high switching costs and technical challenges if they want to migrate to another provider. Vendor lock-in can limit the customer's flexibility, choice, and control over their IT resources and expose them to the risks of service degradation, price increases, or vendor lockout¹². A multicloud strategy is an approach that uses multiple cloud providers for different IT applications, based on the best fit for each workload. A multicloud strategy can help the customer avoid vendor lock-in by reducing their reliance on any single provider, increasing their bargaining power, and enabling them to leverage the best features and services from different providers³⁴.

NEW QUESTION # 449

Which of the following explains why a cloud provider would establish and publish a format data sanitization policy for its clients?

- A. To be transparent about how the CSP will handle malware infections that may impact systems housing client data
- B. To ensure clients feel comfortable about the handling of any leftover data after termination of the contract
- C. To establish guidelines for how the provider will cleanse any data being imported during a cloud migration
- D. To provide a value add for clients that will assist in cleansing records at no additional charge

Answer: B

Explanation:

A data sanitization policy is a document that defines how a cloud service provider (CSP) will permanently delete or destroy any data that belongs to its clients after the termination of the contract or the deletion of the service. Data sanitization is a process that ensures that the data is not recoverable by any means, even by advanced forensic tools. Data sanitization is important for cloud security and privacy, as it prevents unauthorized access, disclosure, or misuse of the data by the CSP or any third parties. A data sanitization policy can help the CSP demonstrate its compliance with the data protection laws and regulations, such as the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) or the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA), that may apply to its clients' data. A data sanitization policy can also help the CSP build trust and confidence with its clients, as it assures them that their data will be handled securely and responsibly, and that they will have full control and ownership of their data. Therefore, option D is the best explanation of why a cloud provider would establish and publish a format data sanitization policy for its clients. Option A is incorrect because it does not explain why a cloud provider would establish and publish a format data sanitization policy for its clients, but rather how the provider will cleanse any data being imported during a cloud migration. Data cleansing is a process that improves the quality and accuracy of the data by removing or correcting any errors, inconsistencies, or duplicates. Data cleansing is not the same as data sanitization, as it does not involve deleting or destroying the data. Option B is incorrect because it does not explain why a cloud provider would establish and publish a format data sanitization policy for its clients, but rather how the CSP will handle malware infections that may impact systems housing client data. Malware is a malicious software that can harm or compromise the systems or data of the CSP or its clients. Malware prevention and detection are important aspects of cloud security, but they are not the same as data sanitization, as they do not involve deleting or destroying the data. Option C is incorrect because it does not explain why a cloud provider would establish and publish a format data sanitization policy for its clients, but rather how the CSP will provide a value add for clients that will assist in cleansing records at no additional charge. Data cleansing, as explained above, is a process that improves the quality and accuracy of the data, not a process that deletes or destroys the data. Data cleansing may or may not be offered by the CSP as a value-added service, but it is not the same as data sanitization, which is a mandatory and essential service for cloud security and privacy.
