CIPS Whole Life Asset Management Sample Questions (Q99-Q104):

NEW QUESTION # 99

A cardiac department within a local hospital carries out a small number of specialist emergency care heart surgeries each year. The devices implanted in the patients can vary significantly depending on the condition of the patient. Therefore, the hospital requires a stock management technique that minimizes the cost of holding several different items of stock, without impacting the critical service levels, and allowing the supplier to retain the title of the stock until the hospital's cardiac team utilizes it. Which of the following stock management techniques would enable the hospital to achieve this?

- A. Increasing the hospital's overall stock levels in all supplies
- B. Subjective stock forecasting being undertaken by the doctors
- C. Having vendor-owned stock in the hospital stores
- D. Having strategically placed hospital-owned safety stock in various hospital storerooms

Answer: C

Explanation:

Vendor-owned stock allows the hospital to keep essential items available without holding costs. The vendor retains ownership until the item is used, helping the hospital avoid large upfront costs for low-frequency items. This technique aligns with whole-life asset management principles by reducing inventory holding costs while ensuring critical items are readily accessible.

NEW QUESTION # 100

Decommissioning, removal and disposal of assets may have impact on the environment. An organisation should have policies and procedures in place to enhance its environmental performance. Which standard family provides the guidance on environmental policies and procedures?

- A. ISO 14000 family
- B. ISO 27000 family
- C. ISO 9000 family
- D. ISO 22000 family

Answer: A

Explanation:

The ISO 14000 family of standards are developed by ISO Technical Committee ISO/TC 207 and its various subcommittees. For a full list of published standards in the series see their standards catalogue. ISO 14001 provides requirements with guidance for use that relate to environmental systems. Other standards in the family focus on specific approaches such as audits, communications, labelling and life cycle analysis, as well as environmental challenges such as climate change.

ISO 27000 family of standards concerns information technology, with the goal of improving security and protecting company assets. Started in 2005, the two most popular standards are ISO 27001:2013 and 27002:

2013. 27001 is management-based system, whereas 27002 is a technical document, focused on the individual and putting a code of conduct in place. Organizations can choose either standard; ISO 27001 has over 22,000 certifications worldwide. It is a broad standard, and for this reason the certification can be customized to fit the needs of the organization, and is not mandatory.

ISO 22000 sets out the requirements for a food safety management system and can be certified to it. It maps out what an organization needs to do to demonstrate its ability to control food safety hazards in order to ensure that food is safe. It can be used by any organization regardless of its size or position in the food chain.

ISO 9001 is a family of quality management standards, there are fourteen in total. Of these, ISO 9001:2015 is the only one that can be certified to. It was first published in 1987, and has since been updated about every 7 years. The standard details how to put a Quality Management System (QMS) in place to better prepare your organization to produce quality products and services. It is customer-focused, and places an emphasis on continuous improvement and top management processes that extended throughout the organization.

NEW QUESTION # 101

A hospital is purchasing a new software product that will advise nurses when to give medications to hospitalised patients. This is a mobile application that will be used on tablets carried by the nurses. The software is being developed and tested by a company that specialises in mobile medical applications. This software will interface with existing hospital software that orders the medications from the pharmacy. Which acceptance test activity will be required to check whether the new software integrates well with current IT system?

- A. Health and safety testing
- B. Dry running
- C. Compatibility testing
- D. Stress testing

Answer: C

Explanation:

In the scenario, one of the requirements for the new software is that the new one will interface with current system. Compatibility testing would be the most appropriate test here.

There are also other acceptance tests that are mentioned in L4M7 study guide:

- Health and safety test aims at establishing new health and safety routines, providing guidance notices and documentation and ensuring designed-in safety in operation.

- Stress testing (sometimes called torture testing) is a form of deliberately intense or thorough testing used to determine the stability of a given system, critical infrastructure or entity. It involves testing beyond normal operational capacity, often to a breaking point, in order to observe the results.

- A dry run (or a practice run) is a testing process where the effects of a possible failure are intentionally mitigated. For example, an aerospace company may conduct a "dry run" test of a jet's new pilot ejection seat while the jet is parked on the ground, rather than while it is in flight.

The usage of "dry run" in acceptance procedures (for example in the so-called FAT = factory acceptance testing) is meant as following: the factory - which is a subcontractor - must perform a complete test of the system it has to deliver before the actual acceptance by customer.
