NEW QUESTION # 95
When a Linux host is in Reduced Functionality Mode (RFM) what telemetry and protection is still offered?

- A. The sensor would provide protection as normal, without event telemetry
- B. The sensor would provide minimal protection
- C. The sensor would function as normal
- D. The sensor provides no protection, and only collects Sensor Heart Beat events

Answer: B

Explanation:
When a Linux host is in Reduced Functionality Mode (RFM), the sensor would provide minimal protection. RFM is a mode that limits the sensor's functionality due to license expiration, network connectivity loss, or certificate validation failure. When a Linux sensor is in RFM, it will only provide basic prevention capabilities, such as blocking known malware hashes and preventing script execution from the /tmp directory. The sensor will not send any telemetry or detection events to the Falcon platform, and will not receive any policy or update changes from the Falcon cloud.

- C. Falcon Host Security Lead

- A. Pre-defined permissions are assigned to sets called roles. Users can be assigned multiple roles based on job function and they assume a cumulative set of permissions based on those assignments
- B. Permissions are token-based. Users request access to a defined set of permissions and an administrator adds their token to the set of permissions
- C. An administrator selects individual granular permissions from the Falcon Permissions List during user creation
- D. Permissions are assigned to a User Group and then users are assigned to that group, thereby inheriting those permissions
