CompTIA Cloud+ (2025) Sample Questions (Q55-Q60):

NEW QUESTION # 55

A customer is migrating applications to the cloud and wants to grant authorization based on the classification levels of each system. Which of the following should the customer implement to ensure authorisation to systems is granted when the user and system classification properties match? (Choose two.)

- A. Bastion host
- B. Discretionary access control
- C. Role-based access control
- D. Token-based authentication
- E. Multifactor authentication
- F. Resource tagging

Answer: C,F

Explanation:

Resource tagging allows classification of systems and resources, enabling policies to be applied based on those tags.

Attribute-based access control (ABAC) grants authorization based on matching attributes like classification levels between users and systems.

NEW QUESTION # 56

Which of the following is the most cost-effective and efficient strategy when migrating to the cloud?

- A. Retain
- B. Retire
- C. Refactor
- D. Replatform

Answer: B

Explanation:

The most cost-effective and efficient strategy when migrating to the cloud can often be to 'retire' or turn off legacy systems that are no longer useful or necessary. This avoids spending resources on migrating and maintaining systems that do not provide value in a cloud environment. References: Cloud migration strategies, including retiring outdated systems, are part of the decision-making process for cloud adoption in the CompTIA Cloud+ certification material.

NEW QUESTION # 57

A network administrator is budding a site-to-site VPN tunnel from the company's headquarters office 10 the company's public cloud development network. The network administrator confirms the following:

- The VPN tunnel is established on the headquarter office firewall.

While inside the office, developers report that they cannot connect to the development network resources.

- While outside the office on a client VPN, developers report that they can connect to the development network resources.

- The office and the client VPN have different IP subnet ranges. The firewall flow logs show VPN traffic is reaching the development network from the office.

Which of the following is the next step the next network administrator should take to troubleshoot the VPN tunnel?

- A. Restart the site-to-site VPN tunnel.
- B. Check the ACLS on the development workloads
- C. Review the development network routing table.
- D. Change the ciphers on the site-to-site VPN.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The next step in troubleshooting the VPN tunnel issue is to review the development network routing table. This action will help determine if the routing configurations are correctly directing traffic from the headquarters office through the VPN tunnel to the development network resources. Proper routing ensures that data packets find their way to the correct destination within the cloud environment, which is critical for establishing successful communication between different network segments.

NEW QUESTION # 58

A customer is migrating applications to the cloud and wants to grant authorization based on the classification levels of each system. Which of the following should the customer implement to ensure authorisation to systems is granted when the user and system classification properties match? (Select two).

- A. Bastion host
- B. Discretionary access control
- C. Role-based access control
- D. Token-based authentication
- E. Resource tagging
- F. Multifactor authentication

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

Discretionary Access Control (DAC) and Role-Based Access Control (RBAC) are effective methods for granting authorization based on system classification levels. DAC allows resource owners to grant access rights, making it flexible for environments with varying classification levels. RBAC assigns permissions based on roles within an organization, aligning access rights with the user's job functions and ensuring that users access only what is necessary for their role, which can be mapped to system classifications. CompTIA Cloud+ content covers various access control models, emphasizing the importance of implementing appropriate security measures that align with organizational policies and classification levels to ensure secure and authorized access to cloud systems.

NEW QUESTION # 59

Which of the following will best reduce the cost of running workloads while maintaining the same performance? (Select two).

- A. Tagging
- B. Spot instance model
- C. Pay-as-you-go model
- D. Instance size
- E. Reserved resources model
- F. Dedicated host model

Answer: B,E

Explanation:

The Reserved resources model offers cost savings for committed use over a long term, which can reduce costs while maintaining performance for predictable workloads. The Spot instance model allows users to take advantage of unused capacity at lower prices, offering significant cost savings, though with the possibility of instances being terminated when demand rises. Both models can be strategically used to optimize costs without compromising performance.
