SAP Certified Associate - Implementation Consultant - SAP Service Cloud Version 2 Sample Questions (Q55-Q60):

NEW QUESTION # 55

When using autoflow rules, which of the following do you need to consider? Note: There are 3 correct answers to this question.

- A. Optimization from the back end is done automatically when too many autoflow rules exist.
- B. Too many rules affect system performance.
- C. Autoflow rules must be assigned to the business role.
- D. Conditions can be based on standard fields.
- E. Conditions can be based on extension fields.

Answer: B,D,E

Explanation:

When using autoflow rules in SAP Service Cloud V2, administrators must consider that conditions can be based on standard fields

(e.g., case type, priority) to trigger automated actions. Too many rules can affect system performance, as excessive rules increase processing time. Additionally, conditions can be based on extension fields, allowing customization to meet specific business needs. According to SAP documentation, "Autoflow rules support conditions based on standard and extension fields, but administrators should monitor rule volume to avoid performance issues." Optimization from the back end (C) is not automatic for autoflow rules. Assigning autoflow rules to business roles (E) is not required, as rules are system-wide.

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

When creating account master data objects in SAP Service Cloud V2, Role can be included to define the account's function (e.g., customer, prospect). Account team member is also included to assign employees responsible for managing the account. According to SAP documentation, "Account master data includes attributes such as Role and Account Team Members to support customer relationship management." Title (B) is typically associated with contacts, not accounts. Contract data (D) is managed separately and not part of account master data creation.
