- A. Formulas
- B. General Ledger journal entries
- C. Point of View (POV)
- D. RuleSets

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 51

What type of user must be defined before you can create an Implementation Project?

- A. Implementation Users
- B. None. The OIM system administrator user ID, XELSYSADM, which is assigned by the person provisioning the system, has full access.
- C. All roles that will be used throughout the implementation
- D. A full-time employee that has the FSM Superuser role assigned
- E. None. The Fusion Applications Superuser, FAADMIN, has full access to create an Implementation Project.

Answer: E

NEW QUESTION # 52

A company implementing Oracle General Ledger has a business requirement to report under two accounting conventions and is considering setting up a primary and secondary ledger. The two accounting standards are very close.

Which data conversion level should you recommend to ensure only manual journals will be entered in the secondary ledger?

- A. Subledger level
- B. Balance level
- C. FBDI level
- D. Journal level
- E. Adjustment only level

Answer: E

Explanation:

The adjustment only level is the data conversion level that ensures only manual journals will be entered in the secondary ledger. This level means that no data is copied from the primary ledger to the secondary ledger automatically. Instead, the user can enter manual adjustments in the secondary ledger to reflect the differences between the two accounting standards. This level is suitable for scenarios where the accounting methods or charts of accounts are very close between the primary and secondary ledgers, and there is no need to maintain detailed journals or subledger transactions in the secondary ledger. NEW QUESTION # 53

You have three ledgers that use the same chart of accounts with one intercompany payable and one intercompany receivable account. The chart of accounts also has an intercompany segment. Each ledger has one legal entity assigned to it and each legal entity is associated with one balancing segment value.

At what level should you define the default intercompany balancing rule?

- A. Chart of accounts rule
- B. Ledger-level rule
- C. Legal entity-level rule
- D. Primary balancing segment rule

Answer: A

Explanation:

You should define the default intercompany balancing rule at the legal entity level, because each ledger has one legal entity assigned to it and each legal entity is associated with one balancing segment value. This way, you can specify the intercompany receivables and payables accounts for each legal entity and ensure that the journals are balanced by legal entity or primary balancing segment values. A ledger-level rule would apply to all legal entities in the ledger, which may not be appropriate if they have different intercompany accounts. A primary balancing segment rule would apply to all ledgers that share the same chart of accounts, which may not be desirable if they have different intercompany rules. A chart of accounts rule would apply to all ledgers and legal entities that use the same chart of accounts, which may not be feasible if they have different intercompany segments or accounts.
