APEGS National Professional Practice Examination (NPPE) Exam Sample Questions (Q158-Q163):

NEW QUESTION # 158

Alex, a professional member, is a manager at a construction firm. His boss asks him to fill two student job positions (a student engineering position and a student geoscience position) for the summer. After creating a Job posting and advertising the positions for one month, Alex receives 40 applications. During the review process, he discovers that the daughter of his old friend from university is one of the student job applicants.

Alex is concerned that proceeding with the review of the applications will create a conflict of interest for him. What actions can Alex take to remove any possible conflict of Interest in this situation?

- A. Remove the daughter's Job application and proceed with the review of all others.
- B. Assume a professional attitude and consider the daughter's application the same as all others.
- C. Review the daughter's application with the others to see If It Is good enough to go on to the next step before telling his boss.
- D. Tell his boss that he has known the applicant's father since university and ask the boss to decide if he can proceed.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The best action Alex can take to remove any possible conflict of interest is to inform his boss about his connection to one of the applicants and ask for guidance on whether he should proceed with the review (Option C). This maintains transparency and integrity, ensuring that the selection process is fair and unbiased, and that any decisions made are free from personal influence.

NEW QUESTION # 159

It is prudent for self-employed, licensed geoscientists and engineers to hold professional liability Insurance to help protect them against potential claims. Liabilities resulting from which of the following actions are not likely to be covered by professional liability Insurance?

- A. Misjudgment or misunderstanding
- B. Breach of contract
- C. Corruption or fraud
- D. Oversight or deficiency

Answer: C

Explanation:

Liabilities resulting from corruption or fraud (Option B) are not likely to be covered by professional liability insurance. This type of insurance typically covers errors, omissions, oversight, deficiency, misjudgment, or misunderstanding stemming from professional services rendered. However, intentional wrongful acts like corruption or fraud are generally excluded from such policies because they are outside the bounds of professional error or accident.

NEW QUESTION # 160

Which of the following situations gives an example of breach of contract by inadvertence?

- A. A service provider unintentionally fails to carry out one of its promises or obligations specified in the contract.
- B. A service provider would like to perform its obligations but is unable to do so for reasons such as lack of financial resources or lack of necessary equipment or expertise.
- C. A service provider loses money on a contract and determines that it would cost less to let the company go bankrupt than to complete the contract.

- D. A service provider interprets the meaning of the contract differently than the service receiver.

Answer: A

Explanation:

A breach of contract occurs when a party fails to perform a contractual obligation. NPPE materials often distinguish types of breach by intent or cause: inadvertent breach is an unintentional failure to meet a promise (e.g., oversight, mistake in execution), as opposed to deliberate breach (sometimes called efficient breach) where a party knowingly chooses not to perform, or incapacity-related non-performance where the party cannot perform due to insufficient resources or capability. Option B directly describes inadvertence: unintentionally failing to carry out a specified promise or obligation. Option C describes a deliberate decision not to perform (a willful breach). Option D reflects inability to perform due to lack of resources or expertise- more akin to incapacity or poor planning, not "inadvertence" in the narrow sense used in NPPE summaries.

Option A is more about contract interpretation/ambiguity and potential dispute over meaning; it may lead to an alleged breach, but it is not the clearest example of inadvertent breach. Therefore, B is the best answer.

NEW QUESTION # 161

A licensed professional is asked by their employer to perform a professional task within their competency.

The task is neither illegal nor in clear violation of their regulator's Code of Ethics; however, it does contravene the professional's personal moral code. The most appropriate action for the professional to take is to

- A. notify the regulator of the immoral or unjust request made by their employer
- B. ignore the employer's request, knowing it cannot result in disciplinary action
- C. inform the employer that they are unwilling to perform the task for personal reasons
- D. initiate an employee petition to convince their employer that such a task is immoral or unjust

Answer: C

Explanation:

NPPE ethics distinguishes between legal/professional obligations and an individual's personal moral beliefs.

If the requested task is within competence, lawful, and not a clear breach of the Code of Ethics, the professional is not automatically obligated to perform it; however, the response should remain professional, honest, and respectful of the employment relationship.

The appropriate initial step is to communicate directly with the employer, explain that the professional is unwilling to proceed for personal reasons, and (where feasible) request reassignment or propose an alternative approach. That aligns with option C. Option A is inappropriate because ignoring instructions is unprofessional and can create employment consequences and operational risk.

Option B is not appropriate because regulators address professional misconduct/unlicensed practice and public-interest concerns; a task that is not illegal or unethical under the Code is not typically a regulator matter. Option D is unnecessary and potentially disruptive as an initial response; it shifts the issue into workplace activism rather than handling it through proper internal communication. Therefore, C is the best action.

NEW QUESTION # 162

Which of the following statements regarding a negligence action in civil court is false?

- A. The plaintiff must prove on a balance of probabilities that the defendant knowingly and intentionally put the plaintiff at risk through their actions.
- B. A finding of negligence in a civil suit may result in further disciplinary action by the professional regulator as double Jeopardy does not apply.
- C. The plaintiff must prove on a balance of probabilities that the defendant failed to meet the standard of care expected of an average professional in the field.
- D. In order to assist the court in understanding technical matters, an expert witness may be called to provide an opinion.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The false statement about a negligence action in civil court is that the plaintiff must prove on a balance of probabilities that the defendant knowingly and intentionally put the plaintiff at risk through their actions.

Negligence does not require proving intentional harm; rather, it involves a failure to meet a standard of care that a reasonable person would have met under similar circumstances .
