Saviynt Certified Advanced IGA Professional (Level 200) Sample Questions (Q39-Q44):

NEW QUESTION # 39

Scenario:

John, an EIC System Administrator, encounters a situation where a user account has been compromised, and he needs to take immediate action to prevent further unauthorized access.

Question:

Given the scenario, which action should John take on EIC to prevent compromised user account access on the impacted application?

- A. Suspend
- B. Lock
- C. Delete
- D. Expire

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC, when an account is compromised and requires immediate containment, the most appropriate action is to lock the account (Option A). Locking an account ensures that the user is instantly prevented from logging into the target system without removing the account or affecting its underlying configuration. This action is reversible and allows administrators to quickly secure the account while further investigation or remediation steps (such as password reset or access review) are performed.

Option B (Suspend) is typically used for longer-term access revocation scenarios, such as employee leave or inactivity, and may depend on application-specific configurations. Option C (Expire) relates to setting an end date for account validity, which is not suitable for immediate threat mitigation. Option D (Delete) is a permanent and destructive action, generally avoided in incident response because it removes audit trails and complicates recovery.

Therefore, locking the account aligns with Saviynt best practices for incident response and rapid risk mitigation, ensuring security without losing account traceability.

NEW QUESTION # 40

During a User Import, to define the maximum number of records to be processed in each page, specify the value of the MAX_PAGINATION_SIZE parameter. If this value is not defined, what is the default value?

- A. No default value, it's based on MAX_PAGINATION_SIZE
- B. 0
- C. 1
- D. 2

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC REST connector configurations, pagination is a critical mechanism used during user import (identity reconciliation) to efficiently process large datasets from target systems. The parameter `MAX_PAGINATION_SIZE` determines how many records are fetched and processed per API call (per page).

If `MAX_PAGINATION_SIZE` is not explicitly defined, Saviynt uses a default value of 1000 records per page.

This default is designed to balance performance and system stability. Fetching too many records in a single API call can lead to performance bottlenecks, API timeouts, or memory issues, while too few records can increase the number of API calls and slow down the overall import process.

Option A (50000) and C (10000) are incorrect because these values are typically too large for default settings and must be explicitly configured if required. Option B is incorrect because Saviynt does not provide a default fallback value rather than leaving it undefined. Therefore, when `MAX_PAGINATION_SIZE` is not specified, Saviynt defaults to 1000, ensuring efficient and stable data import operations.

NEW QUESTION # 41

What are the filters available to view the SOD violations in the SOD Risk Evaluation Job? (Multi-Select)

- A. User Account Evaluation
- B. Security System
- C. Users
- D. Ruleset

Answer: B,C,D

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC, the SOD (Segregation of Duties) Risk Evaluation Job is used to identify conflicts in user access that violate defined SOD policies. To efficiently analyze and review these violations, Saviynt provides several filtering options.

Users (A) is a valid filter that allows administrators to view SOD violations specific to individual users or a group of users. This is helpful for targeted investigations or audits.

Security System (B) is also a valid filter, enabling administrators to narrow down violations based on specific applications or systems. This is useful when analyzing risks within a particular application landscape.

Ruleset (C) is another important filter, as SOD violations are evaluated based on predefined rule sets.

Administrators can filter results based on specific rulesets to understand which policies are being violated.

Option D (User Account Evaluation) is not a standard filter in the SOD Risk Evaluation Job. It is more related to job execution scope rather than filtering results.

Thus, the correct answers are Users, Security System, and Ruleset, which are the primary filters for analyzing SOD violations.

NEW QUESTION # 42

EIC Admin encounters an error "Connection Name Specified in accountJSON is not found" while running the WSRETRY job. Which JSON needs to be corrected?

- A. Update the correct connection name in ImportAccountJSON
- B. Update the correct connection name in CreateAccountJSON
- C. Update the correct connection name in ImportUserJSON
- D. Update the correct connection name in ImportAccountEntJSON

Answer: A

Explanation:

The error message "Connection Name Specified in accountJSON is not found" clearly indicates that the issue is related to the `accountJSON` configuration, which directly corresponds to `ImportAccountJSON` in Saviynt REST connector terminology. This JSON is responsible for handling account import (reconciliation) operations, including defining the connection name, API endpoints, and parsing logic for retrieving account data.

The WSRETRY job is typically used to retry failed web service (REST) operations, especially related to account imports or provisioning failures. Since the error explicitly references `accountJSON`, it means the system is unable to locate the connection name defined within the `ImportAccountJSON` configuration. This usually happens when the connection name is either misspelled, mismatched with the `ConnectionJSON` configuration, or incorrectly referenced.

Other options are incorrect because `CreateAccountJSON` is used for provisioning (account creation), `ImportUserJSON` is for identity import, and `ImportAccountEntJSON` is primarily used for entitlement and combined account-entitlement imports.

Therefore, correcting the connection name in `ImportAccountJSON` resolves this issue.

NEW QUESTION # 43

In the Saviynt App for ServiceNow, what options are available to refresh the RITM status in the ServiceNow app based on the respective Saviynt's status? (Multi-Select)

- A. Regenerate application catalog item
- B. It will be automatically updated in 1 minute via Request item history job in ServiceNow
- C. Make a Postman API call
- D. Click Refresh button on the RITM page in ServiceNow

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

In Saviynt-ServiceNow integration, the synchronization of RITM (Request Item) status between Saviynt and ServiceNow is handled through both manual and automated mechanisms.

Option B is correct because users or administrators can manually click the Refresh button on the RITM page in ServiceNow to immediately fetch the latest status from Saviynt. This is useful for real-time validation when monitoring request progress.

Option C is also correct as ServiceNow includes a Request Item History Job, which runs periodically (commonly every minute) to automatically sync and update the RITM status based on the latest state in Saviynt. This ensures near real-time consistency between both systems without manual intervention.

Option A is incorrect because Postman API calls are not a standard or supported operational method for end users to refresh RITM status. Option D is unrelated, as regenerating catalog items does not impact ticket status synchronization.

Thus, the correct answers are manual refresh and automated job-based synchronization.
