NEW QUESTION # 295

Which two are true about granting object privileges on tables, views, and sequences?

- A. REFERENCES can be granted only on tables.

- C. SELECT can be granted on tables, views, and sequences.
- D. INSERT can be granted only on tables and sequences.
- E. DELETE can be granted on tables, views, and sequences.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

Object privileges applicable to tables, views, and sequences in Oracle are:

B . REFERENCES can be granted only on tables. It allows the grantee to create a foreign key that refers to the table.

D . SELECT can be granted on tables and views. This allows the grantee to perform a SELECT on the table or view.

A, C, and E are incorrect. Specifically:

A is incorrect because DELETE cannot be granted on sequences; it is a privilege applicable to tables and views.

C is incorrect because INSERT cannot be granted on sequences; INSERT is applicable only to tables and views.

E is incorrect because ALTER is a privilege applicable to tables and indexes, not sequences.
