問題 #660

A patient's family disagrees with the treatment plan proposed by the healthcare team. As the patient's nurse, which of the following responses is BEST?

- A. Exploring the reason that the patient's family disagrees with the treatment plan

- B. Educating the patient's family on how the treatment plan works and why it is necessary
- C. Encouraging the healthcare team to adjust the treatment plan to meet the patient's family's expectations
- D. Suggesting the family to find another healthcare provider that they can trust

答案： A

解題說明：

The nurse should explore the reason that the patient's family disagrees with the treatment plan. This can help the nurse determine if they have a legitimate problem that requires readjustment of the plan of care, a need for more education, or emotional stressors that need to be addressed. Educating the patient's family on how the treatment plan works and why it is necessary is only helpful if their reason for disagreeing is due to a lack of understanding. Suggesting the family find another healthcare provider that they can trust is not correct, unless their sole reason for disagreeing is due to mistrust of the care team. Encouraging the healthcare team to adjust the treatment plan to meet the patient's family's expectations is only appropriate if there is a legitimate reason for changing the care plan.

問題 #661

A patient is intubated, is unable to follow simple commands, and has no history of alcohol abuse. The patient has become increasingly disoriented and confused over the past 24 hours. After assessment and treatment of pain, the best medication intervention for management is

- A. cisatracurium (Nimbex).
- B. midazolam (Versed).
- C. dexmedetomidine (Precedex).
- D. lorazepam (Ativan).

答案： C

解題說明：

Dexmedetomidine (Precedex) is the most appropriate medication for managing agitation and delirium in a critically ill intubated patient. It provides sedation without significant respiratory depression and has analgesic properties, which makes it suitable for patients who are disoriented and confused. Unlike benzodiazepines (lorazepam and midazolam) or neuromuscular blockers (cisatracurium), dexmedetomidine can improve delirium outcomes and facilitates easier weaning from mechanical ventilation. 問題 #662

A 22-year-old trauma patient sustained multiple fractures after a fall. The patient fell 50 feet from a cliff while rock climbing without a harness. The patient is intubated and sedated with casts to bilateral lower extremities. The nurse should recognize that young adults are

- A. developmentally vulnerable to peer pressure in extreme sports.
- B. more likely to engage in risk-taking behaviors.
- C. working through trust issues that cause them to test limits.
- D. influenced by long-time intervals spent in virtual reality.

答案： B

問題 #663

Complications associated with extubation of an Endotracheal (ET) tube include all of the following EXCEPT:

- A. tracheomalacia
- B. bronchospasm
- C. aspiration
- D. tracheal damage

答案： A

解題說明：

Tracheomalacia is a complication associated with prolonged intubation. While tracheomalacia may first be evident during extubation,

問題 #664

- A. Recommend that she transfer to a less intensive care environment, like a stepdown unit, for at least one year
- B. Report her to the nursing manager so that they can review her competence as an ICU nurse
- C. Review the incident privately with her, providing feedback about what went well and areas for improvement
- D. Ignore the situation, understanding that it is her first time in this situation and that she will learn from the experience
