CompTIA DataSys+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q35-Q40):

NEW QUESTION # 35
A database administrator is creating a table, which will contain customer data, for an online business. Which of the following SQL syntaxes should the administrator use to create an object?

- A. □
- B. □
- C. □
- D. □

Answer: B

Explanation:
The SQL syntax that the administrator should use to create an object is option B. This syntax uses the CREATE TABLE statement to define a new table named customer with four columns:
customer_id, name, email, and phone. Each column has a data type and a constraint, such as NOT NULL or PRIMARY KEY. The other options either have syntax errors, use incorrect keywords, or do not specify the table name or columns correctly.

NEW QUESTION # 36
Which of the following should a company develop to ensure preparedness for a fire in a data center?

- A. Deployment plan
- B. Data retention policy
- C. Backup plan
- D. Disaster recovery plan

Answer: D

Explanation:
The document that a company should develop to ensure preparedness for a fire in a data center is a disaster recovery plan. A disaster recovery plan is a document that outlines how an organization will continue its operations in the event of a disaster or disruption, such as fire, flood, earthquake, cyberattack, etc. A disaster recovery plan typically includes the following elements: - The objectives and scope of the plan - The roles and responsibilities of the staff involved - The identification and assessment of the risks and impacts - The strategies and procedures for restoring the critical functions and data - The resources and tools required for the recovery process - The testing and maintenance schedule for the plan A disaster recovery plan helps an organization to minimize the damage and downtime caused by a disaster, as well as to resume normal operations as soon as possible. The other options are either different types of documents or not specific to fire preparedness. For example, a deployment plan is a document that describes how a system or software will be installed or launched; a backup plan is a document that specifies how data will be copied and stored for backup purposes; a data retention policy is a document that defines how long data should be kept and when it should be deleted or archived.

NEW QUESTION # 37
A database manager would like to reduce the overhead caused by log-based recoveries.
Which of the following should the manager use to best mitigate the situation?

- A. Checkpoints
- B. Indexes
- C. Locks
- D. Deadlocks

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 38
A database administrator manages a database server that is running low on disk space. A lot of backup files are stored on the server's disks.
Which of the following is the best action for the administrator to take?

- A. Delete all the backup files that are not required by the backup retention policy.
- B. Delete all the backup files containing data that is rated as classified.
- C. Delete all the backup files except for the most recent one.
- D. Move all the backup files to external disks.

Answer: A

Explanation:
The best action for the administrator to take is to delete all the backup files that are not required by the backup retention policy. This will free up disk space on the server and also comply with the best practices for data backup and recovery. The backup retention policy defines how long the backup files should be kept and when they should be deleted or archived. The other options are either risky, inefficient, or impractical. For example, moving all the backup files to external disks would require additional hardware and time, deleting all the backup files containing data that is rated as classified would compromise data security and compliance, and deleting all the backup files except for the most recent one would limit the recovery options in case of a disaster. Reference: CompTIA DataSys+ Course Outline, Domain 5.0 Business Continuity, Objective 5.2 Given a scenario, implement backup and restoration of database management systems.

NEW QUESTION # 39
A company needs to prepare a document that establishes the responsibilities, metrics, penalties, and other generalities that a provider would have to fulfill for customers to use its platforms.
Which of the following documents meets these requirements?

- A. DOU
- B. SLA
- C. SOW
- D. MOU

Answer: B

Explanation:
The document that meets these requirements is an SLA. An SLA, or Service Level Agreement, is a contract between a service provider and a customer that defines the scope, quality, and terms of the service delivery. An SLA typically includes the responsibilities, metrics, penalties, and other generalities that a provider would have to fulfill for customers to use its platforms. An SLA also establishes the expectations and obligations of both parties, as well as the methods for measuring and monitoring the service performance. The other options are either different types of documents or not related to service delivery. For example, a DOU, or Data Use Agreement, is a document that governs the sharing and use of data between parties; an MOU, or Memorandum of Understanding, is a document that expresses a mutual agreement or intention between parties; a SOW, or Statement of Work, is a document that describes the specific tasks and deliverables of a project or contract.
