Adobe Workfront Project Manager Certified Professional Sample Questions (Q49-Q54):

NEW QUESTION # 49

What is unique to a Scrum iteration?

- A. Workload Balancer for assigning users to tasks
- B. Burndown Chart
- C. Backlog of stories and issues

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Burndown Chart is a visual representation of work remaining versus time in a Scrum iteration. It is unique to agile methodologies like Scrum and is used to track the team's progress during a sprint. The chart helps teams visualize how much work is left to complete the sprint goal, making it a critical tool in Scrum.

NEW QUESTION # 50

Task 1 on Project 1 can only be started once the final milestone on Project 2 is completed. How can the project manager configure this relationship?

- A. Add a cross-project predecessor on the final milestone of Project 1.
- B. Add a cross-project predecessor on the final milestone in Project 2.
- C. Add a cross-project predecessor on Task 1 in Project 1.

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Workfront, cross-project predecessors allow dependencies between tasks across different projects. To ensure that Task 1 in Project 1 starts only after the final milestone of Project 2, the project manager must configure a cross-project predecessor linking the final milestone in Project 2 to Task 1 in Project 1. This establishes a dependency and aligns the timelines of the two projects.

NEW QUESTION # 51

What do the green symbols in the report below signify?

- A. On Time
- B. Late
- C. At Risk

Answer: A

Explanation:

In Adobe Workfront reports and list views, colored status icons are used to visually communicate the progress status or condition of work items. Adobe Workfront documentation for built-in status icons explains that task progress status icons include On Time, Late, At Risk, and Behind indicators. In this icon system, On Time is represented by a green icon, while Late is represented by a red icon, and At Risk is represented by a different color/icon indicator. Adobe's Milestone View documentation also confirms that task progress status uses color coding where On Time is green, Behind is yellow, At Risk is blue, and Late is red. Therefore, the green symbols shown in the report signify that the related tasks or milestone items are progressing on schedule and are considered On

Time. They do not indicate risk or lateness. Based on Adobe Workfront's documented progress status color conventions, the correct option is A. On Time.

NEW QUESTION # 52

A creative team accesses their assigned work in a My Tasks list report. The team would like to easily see any New tasks highlighted for visibility. How can the project manager accommodate the team's request?

- A. Create a Filter that uses conditional formatting to display New tasks only.
- B. Create a View that uses Column Rules to format the New tasks for visibility.
- C. Create a grouping for task Progress Status and use a custom color pie chart for visibility.
- D. Schedule a daily automatic report delivery of the New tasks in the report to the team.

Answer: B

Explanation:

To meet the team's request for highlighting new tasks, the most effective solution is to create a View that uses Column Rules. These rules allow for conditional formatting based on task criteria, such as highlighting new tasks in a specific color for easy identification. This approach enhances visibility without requiring the creation of filters or new reports, and it makes it easier for users to see relevant tasks within their existing task lists.

NEW QUESTION # 53

An assignee clicks Work On It for a task, and a new finish date appears on the task while the original planned finish stays the same. What does this new date communicate to the project manager?

- A. It indicates that the assignee's finish date is wrong and should be ignored.
- B. It indicates that the assignee's finish date replaces the Planned Completion Date.
- C. It indicates the assignee's own estimate of when they expect to finish the task, which can differ from the Planned Completion Date.

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Adobe Workfront, when an assignee clicks Work On It, Workfront updates the assignment status and can also set or update the Commit Date for the task. The Commit Date is the date the assigned user commits to completing the task or issue. Adobe's documentation explains that this date is different from the Planned Completion Date because it represents a more realistic estimate given by the user responsible for completing the work. The Planned Completion Date remains part of the project plan and does not automatically change just because the assignee updates the Commit Date. Adobe also states that changes made to the Commit Date do not automatically change planned dates. Instead, the project manager can use the assignee's Commit Date as a signal and decide whether to manually adjust the planned schedule. Therefore, the new finish date communicates the assignee's own completion commitment or estimate, not a replacement for the planned finish date. The correct answer is C
