CheckPoint Check Point Certified Security Expert R81 Sample Questions (Q557-Q562):

NEW QUESTION # 557

Which of the following is NOT supported by CPUSE?

- A. Automatic download of hotfixes
- B. Offline installations
- C. Installation of private hotfixes
- D. Automatic download of full installation and upgrade packages

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The option that is not supported by CPUSE is offline installations. CPUSE (Check Point Update Service Engine) is a Gaia software update agent that manages software updates on Gaia OS and Check Point products.

It requires an internet connection to download and install updates from the Check Point Cloud or a local Deployment Agent. The other options are supported by CPUSE. It can automatically download full installation and upgrade packages, hotfixes, and private hotfixes. It can also install them manually or automatically according to a schedule. #### NEW QUESTION # 559

Which of the following is NOT an internal/native Check Point command?

- A. `tcpdump`
- B. `fw ctl debug`
- C. `cphaprob`
- D. `fwaccel on`

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

The command `tcpdump` is not an internal/native Check Point command. It is a common command-line tool that captures and analyzes network traffic. The other commands are internal/native Check Point commands that perform various functions. For example:

`fwaccel on` enables SecureXL acceleration on the Security Gateway.

`fw ctl debug` sets the debug flags for the Firewall kernel module.

`cphaprob` displays the status and information about ClusterXL or VRRP members.

NEW QUESTION # 560

What are the two modes for SNX (SSL Network Extender)?

- A. Network Mode and Application Mode
- B. Network Mode and Hub Mode
- C. Office Mode and Hub Mode
- D. Visitor Mode and Office Mode

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

SNX (SSL Network Extender) is a thin VPN client installed on an endpoint user computer that provides secure remote access to a corporate network. It can be used with Mobile Access blade or the IPsec VPN blade via the Mobile Access or SNX portals<sup>1</sup>.

SNX has two modes: Network Mode and Application Mode<sup>2</sup>.

Network Mode: In this mode, SNX creates a virtual network adapter on the endpoint computer and assigns it an IP address from the internal network. This allows the endpoint computer to access all the resources on the internal network as if it was physically connected to it. Network Mode supports all IP-based applications, including TCP and UDP applications<sup>2</sup>.

Application Mode: In this mode, SNX does not create a virtual network adapter on the endpoint computer, but instead intercepts the traffic of specific applications and forwards it to the Security Gateway. Application Mode supports only TCP-based applications that are defined in the Mobile Access policy. Application Mode is useful when Network Mode is not supported or when granular control over the applications is required<sup>2</sup>.
