Adobe Real-Time CDP Business Practitioner Professional Sample Questions (Q40-Q45):

NEW QUESTION # 40
A team of developers at a digital marketing agency is setting up the Real-Time CDP for their client and they need to understand the implications of their data ingestion tactics in relation to their license. Which of these factors contributes to the calculation of Total Data Volume?

- A. Number of unique identifiers linked within the profile
- B. Number of namespaces a profile has data for
- C. Number of Experience Events linked to a profile

Answer: C

Explanation:
In Adobe Real-Time Customer Data Platform, licensing is often tied to two primary metrics: theAddressable Audiencecount (the number of unified profiles) and theTotal Data VolumeorProfile Enrichmentcapacity.

TheNumber of Experience Events linked to a profile (Option C)is a significant factor in the calculation of data volume and profile richness. WhileIndividual Profileattributes (like name or email) are relatively static and small,ExperienceEvents(like clicks, purchases, or page views) are time-series data that can grow exponentially. Every interaction captured via the Web SDK or Batch ingestion adds to the total storage and processing requirements of theReal-Time Customer Profilestore.
Options A and B relate to theIdentity Serviceand the complexity of theIdentity Graph, but they generally do not drive the "Data Volume" metric in the same way as behavioral event history. While having many identifiers or namespaces increases the metadata size of a profile, the bulk of the data weight-and the metric most closely monitored for license overages regarding storage-is the volume of ingested ExperienceEvents.
Developers must implement data retention strategies, such asExperience Event TTL, to purge old events and keep the total data volume within the client's contractual limits.

NEW QUESTION # 41
A company has two identities (CRM ID and Email ID) that can be used to define their customers in their customer relationship management (CRM) system However, not all customers have provided their Email ID.
but all customers have a unique CRM ID The CRM data stored in the system takes the form:
The company wishes to construct a single view of their customer in Real-time Customer Profile. Which two steps would they take to avoid having Incomplete customer profiles" (Choose two.)

- A. Mark Email ID as the primary identity in their XDM schema
- B. Treat the CRM ID and Email ID as separate identities in the XDM schema
- C. Remove any profiles without an Email ID before Ingestion into Real-Time Customer Profile
- D. Establish both the CRM id and Email id as co-primary identities in their xdm schema
- E. Mark CRM ID as the primary identity in their Experience Data Model (XDM) schema

Answer: B,E

Explanation:
To ensure a robust and comprehensive Real-Time Customer Profile, the data architect must select identities that guarantee record uniqueness while maximizing the ability to stitch data. In this scenario, since every customer has aCRM IDbut not every customer has anEmail ID, theCRM IDmust be designated as the Primary Identity(Option A). In Adobe Experience Platform, the Primary Identity serves as the anchor for the profile fragment; if a field marked as the only primary identity is missing a value, the record cannot be ingested into the Profile Service. By selecting the CRM ID, the company ensures that 100% of their records are processed and accessible.
Furthermore, theEmail IDshould be treated as aSecondary Identity(Option C). In XDM, you can mark multiple fields as identities. When Email ID is included as an identity in the schema-even if it is not the primary-it still participates in theIdentity Graph. This allows the platform to "stitch" together profile fragments from other sources (like web behavior or email marketing logs) that might only contain the Email ID.
Option D is incorrect because records without an email (like "Sarah Doe" in the provided image) would fail to load. Option E is technically incorrect because XDM does not support "co-primary" status in a single schema; one must be the primary anchor. By using CRM ID as the primary and Email ID as a secondary identity, the system creates a "Single View of the Customer" that is both complete (no dropped records) and extensible (linkable via email when available).

NEW QUESTION # 42
What is the main goal of role-based access control (RBAC) in Adobe RT-CDP?

- A. To enforce deterministic identity resolution.
- B. To assign specific data access permissions based on user roles.
- C. To automate profile updates.
- D. To create static audience segments.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 43
A customer has noticed incorrect data was loaded into the Real-Time Customer Profile for only two profiles. The data came from a single XDM Individual Profile class-based dataset. What actions can the customer take to correct the problem?

- A. Delete the entire dataset containing the incorrect profiles

- B. Look up each profile in the UI and update the incorrect attributes manually
- C. Delete the batch that created the problem from the dataset in the data lake and let the profile roll- back to its previous state
- D. Re-load all the affected profiles with the correct data and have the profile update and/or replace the existing records in the dataset

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 44
A data architect is configuring an XDM data model to onboard customer data to the Real-Time Customer Profile.
Which three items should the data architect keep in mind when defining identities for the data model? (Choose three.)

- A. Field(s) intended to be used for identity service must be of type string.
- B. A schema must have one primary identity and one other person identity.
- C. A schema must have a single primary identity in order for the schema to be enabled for use in the Real-Time Customer Profile.
- D. A schema must use an identity Map for ingesting identities.
- E. A schema's identity field(s) should have values unique to a single customer profile.

Answer: A,C,E
