You need to create a process workflow for employee background investigations. This workflow takes an average of six months from start to completion. There are multiple phases to the background investigation which must be completed by people in different departments. Each department is responsible for inputting a large amount of data as part of the workflow.

There is an emphasis on process memory management since thousands of these investigations will happen concurrently.

What are two best practices that you should employ when designing this process workflow? (Choose two.)

- A. Divide the workflow into multiple process models so that each process can be short-lived and consume less memory.
- B. Combine all stages of the workflow into a single process model, so that data can be efficiently shared between nodes using process variables.
- C. Ensure that the data management policy is set to archive the process instances after a minimum of six months, so that data is available throughout the workflow.
- D. Utilize a record-backed design throughout the workflow where data entered by users is saved to and queried from the database.

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Using a record-backed design ensures data is persisted in the database, not held in memory, optimizing process memory management.

Dividing the workflow into multiple process models allows each to be short-lived, further reducing memory usage and improving scalability.

Which two steps could you perform to optimize this? (Choose two.)

- B. Create a local variable inside with () for faster reevaluation.
- C. Avoid executing queries every time a form reevaluates.
- D. Ensure the local variable is refreshed after a specified interval, and not refreshed when referenced variable are changed.
