HashiCorp Certified: Terraform Associate (003) (HCTA0-003) Sample Questions (Q120-Q125):

NEW QUESTION # 120

Which of the following locations can Terraform use as a private source for modules? (Pick 2 correct responses)

- A. Internally hosted VCS (Version Control System) platform.
- B. Public Terraform Registry.
- C. Private repository on GitHub.
- D. Public repository on GitHub.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

Terraform allows using private module sources hosted in:

C (Internally hosted VCS platforms, e.g., GitLab, Bitbucket, GitHub Enterprise) # D (Private GitHub repositories) # A (Public GitHub repository) # - GitHub is supported, but a public repo is not "private".

B (Public Terraform Registry) # - The public registry is not a private source.

NEW QUESTION # 121

Which of the following module source paths does not specify a remote module?

- A. Source = "module/consul"
- B. Source = "github.com:comicro/example"
- C. Source = "hasicorp/consul/aws"
- D. Source = "git@github.com:hasicorp/example.git"

Answer: A

Explanation:

The module source path that does not specify a remote module is source = "module/consul". This specifies a local module, which is a module that is stored in a subdirectory of the current working directory. The other options are all examples of remote modules, which are modules that are stored outside of the current working directory and can be accessed by various protocols, such as Git, HTTP, or the Terraform Registry. Remote modules are useful for sharing and reusing code across different configurations and environments. NEW QUESTION # 122

A developer accidentally launched a VM (virtual machine) outside of the Terraform workflow and ended up with two servers with the same name. They don't know which VM Terraform manages but do have a list of all active VM IDs.

Which of the following methods could you use to discover which instance Terraform manages?

- A. Run terraform state list to find the names of all VMs, then run terraform state show for each of them to find which VM ID Terraform manages
- B. Update the code to include outputs for the ID of all VMs, then run terraform plan to view the outputs
- C. Run terraform taint/code on all the VMs to recreate them
- D. Use terraform refresh/code to find out which IDs are already part of state

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

The terraform state list command lists all resources that are managed by Terraform in the current state file 1. The terraform state show command shows the attributes of a single resource in the state file 2. By using these two commands, you can compare the VM IDs in your list with the ones in the state file and identify which one is managed by Terraform.

NEW QUESTION # 123

Which configuration consistency errors does terraform validate report?

- A. Terraform module isn't the latest version
- B. A mix of spaces and tabs in configuration files
- C. Differences between local and remote state
- D. Declaring a resource identifier more than once

Answer: D

Explanation:

Terraform validate reports configuration consistency errors, such as declaring a resource identifier more than once. This means that the same resource type and name combination is used for multiple resource blocks, which is not allowed in Terraform. For example, resource "aws_instance" "example" {...} cannot be used more than once in the same configuration. Terraform validate does not report errors related to module versions, state differences, or formatting issues, as these are not relevant for checking the configuration syntax and structure.

References = [Validate Configuration], [Resource Syntax]

NEW QUESTION # 124

Which of the following arguments are required when declaring a Terraform output?

- A. description
- B. sensitive
- C. default
- D. value

Answer: D

Explanation:

When declaring a Terraform output, the value argument is required. Outputs are a way to extract information from Terraform-managed infrastructure, and the value argument specifies what data will be outputted. While other arguments like description and sensitive can provide additional context or security around the output, value is the only mandatory argument needed to define an output.

Reference = The requirement of the value argument for outputs is specified in Terraform's official documentation, which provides guidelines on defining and using outputs in Terraform configurations.
