NCARB ARE 5.0 Project Management (PjM) Exam Sample Questions (Q56-Q61):

NEW QUESTION # 56

In response to a request for qualifications for a prospective project, the architect assembles a project team of mechanical, electrical, plumbing, and fire protection engineers.

What is the project?

- A. a research university campus master plan
- B. seismic upgrades of a 1950s era hospital
- C. a new school for grades K-12
- D. the renovation of a commercial office building

Answer: C

Explanation:

K-12 schools typically require comprehensive MEPFP (Mechanical, Electrical, Plumbing, Fire Protection) engineering services due to their complex needs—such as HVAC systems, lighting, life safety, and code compliance. Other options may not require the full suite of these services at the proposal stage, particularly a master plan or focused seismic upgrades.

NEW QUESTION # 57

On a private project, which of the following actions by a subcontractor who had not been paid by the contractor is most likely to be an effective collection measure?

- A. Placing a mechanic's lien on the owner's property
- B. Demanding payment from the owner
- C. Hiring a collection agency
- D. Demanding payment from the surety

Answer: A

Explanation:

Verified Answer

On private projects, if a subcontractor is not paid, they may file a mechanic's lien against the owner's property. This legal tool can delay or block sale or refinancing until the debt is settled. It is often the most effective method for securing payment on private projects.

* A mechanic's lien attaches to the property, putting legal and financial pressure on the owner to resolve the issue.

* This is more effective than a collection agency or contacting the surety (which applies only if there is a payment bond, usually on public projects).

NEW QUESTION # 58

According to ATA owner-architect agreements, who is responsible for the cost of evaluating significant substitutions proposed by the contractor, subcontractors, or suppliers and the cost of making subsequent revisions to drawings, specifications, and other documentation?

- A. Owner
- B. Architect
- C. Contractor
- D. Originator

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive Detailed Explanation:

According to AIA B101 (or ATA equivalent) Section 3.6.4.2, if the contractor proposes a substitution that is not part of the base contract, the cost to evaluate it and revise any documents (if accepted) is considered an Additional Service by the architect. Therefore, the owner bears that cost if they authorize the architect to proceed with the evaluation.

NEW QUESTION # 59

Near the end of a routine job site visit, the architect begins to assemble notes. The owner's representative then arrives on site unexpectedly. The architect, owner's representative, and contractor discuss and resolve several outstanding project issues. The architect begins writing correspondence to distribute to the project team when the architect returns to the office.

In addition to a Meeting Record, which of the following documents should the architect create?

- A. Field Observation Report
- B. Email Message
- C. Action Item List

Answer: C

Explanation:

In this scenario, after a job site visit and an impromptu discussion among the architect, owner's representative, and contractor resolving outstanding issues, the architect prepares to document these outcomes.

* Meeting Record: This is the formal documentation of what was discussed during the meeting or site visit, capturing key points, decisions, and general observations.

* Action Item List: This is a crucial document following such meetings, especially when specific tasks, responsibilities, or follow-up actions are assigned to project team members. It lists these action items clearly with responsible parties and deadlines, helping track progress and ensuring accountability.

* Field Observation Report: This report is primarily used to document the architect's observations related to construction quality, progress, and conformance with contract documents during site visits. It focuses on conditions observed, deficiencies, or clarifications needed, not on meeting discussions or issue resolutions.

* Email Message: While emails are often used for communication, they are less formal and do not replace structured project documentation like meeting records or action item lists.

Hence, alongside the Meeting Record, the architect should produce an Action Item List to clearly define and communicate the next steps agreed upon during the discussion.

- * Project communication protocols and documentation practices
- * Documentation of site visits and meeting outcomes (field reports vs. meeting records vs. action items)

NEW QUESTION # 60

What is the primary purpose of a punch list?

- A. To summarize project milestones
- B. To identify incomplete or deficient work before final payment
- C. To list all contract documents
- D. To schedule subcontractors

Answer: B

Explanation:

A punch list is a document prepared near project completion that identifies incomplete or nonconforming work requiring correction before final payment. It ensures all parties agree on outstanding items and facilitates project closeout. Punch lists are a key concept in ARE 5.0 PjM related to construction phase closeout procedures.
