NEW QUESTION # 448

For a board to be successful, the most important type of diversity relates to:

- A. Gender.
- B. Race.
- C. Thought.

Answer: C

Explanation:

While race and gender diversity are critical components of a well-functioning board, diversity of thought is the most important in ensuring effective decision-making, reducing groupthink, and improving governance.

Diversity of thought arises from board members with different backgrounds, professional experiences, and viewpoints, leading to better risk management and innovation.

Research (e.g., McKinsey's "Diversity Wins" 2020 report) indicates that companies with diverse perspectives outperform their peers financially and strategically.

Regulatory bodies and institutional investors (such as MSCI and ISS) increasingly assess cognitive and experiential diversity rather than just demographic diversity.
