Cloud Security Alliance Certificate of Cloud Security Knowledge v5 (CCSKv5.0) Sample Questions (Q170-Q175):

NEW QUESTION # 170

Lack of CPU or network bandwidth and intermittent access to provisioned resources are examples of which of the following cloud risk?

- A. Software vulnerabilities
- B. API vulnerabilities
- C. Isolation failure
- D. Resource Exhaustion

Answer: D

Explanation:

They are all examples of resource exhaustion

NEW QUESTION # 171

Which aspect of a Cloud Service Provider's (CSPs) infrastructure security involves protecting the interfaces used to manage configurations and resources?

- A. Management plane
- B. Virtualization layers
- C. Physical components
- D. PaaS/SaaS services

Answer: A

Explanation:

The management plane refers to the interfaces used to manage configurations and resources in a cloud environment. It is responsible for handling administrative tasks, such as provisioning, configuration management, and monitoring of resources. Protecting the management plane is crucial because it is where sensitive configurations and access control policies are set, which can potentially be exploited if not properly secured.

Securing the management plane involves ensuring that only authorized users and systems can make changes to the cloud infrastructure and resources, protecting these interfaces from unauthorized access or malicious activity.

NEW QUESTION # 172

Without virtualization, there is no cloud.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 173

In a cloud scenario, who is the data processor and who is the data controller?

- A. Neither cloud service provider nor customer is data processor or data controller.
- B. Cloud Service Provider is the data controller and its customer is the data processor
- C. Database admin is the data controller and application owner is the data processor
- D. Cloud Service Provider is the data processor and its customer is the data controller

Answer: D

Explanation:

The customer determines the ultimate purpose of the processing and decides on the outsourcing or the delegation of all or part of the concerned activities to external organizations. Therefore, the customer acts as a controller.

When the service provider supplies the means and the platform, acting on behalf of the customer, it is considered to be a data processor.

NEW QUESTION # 174

What is a common characteristic of default encryption provided by cloud providers for data at rest?

- A. It uses the cloud provider's keys, often at no additional cost
- B. It always requires the customer's own encryption keys
- C. It is not available without an additional premium service
- D. It does not support encryption for data at rest

Answer: A

Explanation:

Many cloud providers offer default encryption for data at rest, which is typically enabled automatically for data stored within the cloud. In these cases, the encryption is often done using the cloud provider's keys as part of the provider's security infrastructure, and it is usually provided at no additional cost to the customer. This ensures that data is protected while at rest, reducing the risk of unauthorized access.
