- A. Enable Pulse to include additional support information
- B. collect logs from the health Page
- C. Run NCC Check from the command line

NEW QUESTION # 83

An administrator needs to deploy a two-node cluster on a new ROBO Site. What is required to maintain High Availability in the case of a node failure?

- A. Metro-Availability
- B. Async Replication
- C. Windows Failover Clustering
- D. Witness VM

Answer: D

Explanation:

To maintain high availability in the case of a node failure in a two-node cluster, a Witness VM is required. Therefore, the correct answer is A. The Witness VM acts as a tie-breaker and arbitrator in the event of a split-brain scenario, where both nodes lose connectivity to each other, to ensure that only one node continues to operate and serve workloads. It is also recommended to use a high-performance network to minimize network latency between the two nodes and the Witness VM.

NEW QUESTION # 11

A Veeam Backup appliance, which uses iSCSI, must be deployed into an AHV-based cluster. What must be configured to allow Veeam to connect to the Nutanix cluster?

- A. Network Segmentation
- B. Prism Central
- C. Data Services IP
- D. Nutanix Objects

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 12

An administrator wants to create a storage container for an application that has built-in redundancy. What should the administrator do?

- A. RF1 is enabled by default in a storage container.
- B. Create an RF1 storage container.
- C. Create an RF1 storage container and enable RF1.
- D. Enable RF1 and create an RF1 storage container.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is B. Create an RF1 storage container.

In Nutanix architecture, Replication Factor (RF) is set at the storage container level to optimize redundancy and performance for specific workloads. When an application has its own internal redundancy, such as database clustering or distributed file systems, the administrator may choose to reduce Nutanix's redundancy to RF1, which stores only one copy of data in the cluster. This reduces overhead and maximizes usable capacity, but is not fault-tolerant at the Nutanix level.

Key clarifications:

- * RF1 is not enabled by default. Nutanix clusters default to RF2 or RF3 depending on the configuration and number of nodes.
- * RF1 must be explicitly set when creating a storage container.
- * There is no separate "enable RF1" setting outside of selecting RF1 at container creation; once selected, it applies directly.

Prism UI Navigation Path:

Storage > Storage Containers > Create Storage Container > Data Redundancy Level # Select "RF1" Official Reference:

* Nutanix Bible - Storage Layer and RF Explanation

* Nutanix Storage Administration Guide - "Creating Containers with Specific Replication Factor"

* Excerpt: "RF1 is typically used for workloads with native redundancy. It must be selected explicitly during container creation."

Conclusion: Only option B accurately reflects this process.

Which Nutanix offering allows for extending an on-prem datacenter into the public cloud?

- A. Nutanix Cloud Clusters
- B. Nutanix Data Services
- C. Nutanix Cloud Security
- D. Nutanix Kubernetes Engine

Answer: A

Explanation:

Nutanix Cloud Clusters (NC2) enables extending on-premises datacenters into public cloud environments, such as AWS or Azure. This solution allows administrators to seamlessly migrate workloads, scale operations, and manage resources across hybrid cloud environments using a unified control plane.

- * A. Nutanix Cloud Security: Incorrect, as this focuses on securing workloads in the cloud, not extending datacenters.
- * B. Nutanix Cloud Clusters: Correct, as NC2 enables hybrid cloud functionality by extending on-prem clusters into the public cloud.
- * C. Nutanix Kubernetes Engine: Incorrect, as this is used for container orchestration, not hybrid cloud extension.
