NEW QUESTION # 96

When would a distributable streaming command be executed on an indexer?

- A. If all preceding search commands are executed on the indexer, and a streamstats command is used.
- B. If some of the preceding search commands are executed on the indexer, and a timerchart command is used.
- C. If all preceding search commands are executed on the indexer.
- D. If any of the preceding search commands are executed on the search head.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 97

How can a lookup be referenced in an alert?

- A. Run a search that uses a lookup and save as an alert.
- B. Use the lookup dropdown in the alert configuration window.
- C. Follow a lookup with an alert command in the search bar.
- D. Upload a lookup file directly to the alert.

Answer: A

Explanation:

To reference a lookup in an alert in Splunk, you would run a search that uses a lookup and then save that search as an alert (Option C). This method integrates the lookup within the search logic, and when the search conditions meet the alert's trigger conditions, the alert is activated. This approach allows the alert to leverage the enriched data provided by the lookup for more accurate and informative alerting.

NEW QUESTION # 98

What default Splunk role can use the Log Event alert action?

- A. Power
- B. can_delete
- C. User
- D. Admin

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Admin role (Option D) has the privilege to use the Log Event alert action, which logs an event to an index when an alert is triggered. Admins have the broadest range of permissions, including configuring and managing alert actions in Splunk.

NEW QUESTION # 99

Which of the following cannot be accomplished with a webhook alert action?

- A. Post a message in a chatroom
- B. Post a notification on a web page
- C. Create a ticket in a support app
- D. Retrieve data from a web page

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Step by Step Explanation: A webhook in Splunk is designed to send HTTP POST requests to a specified URL when an alert is triggered. This mechanism allows Splunk to communicate with external systems by pushing data to them. Common use cases for webhooks include:

* Creating a ticket in a support application: By sending a POST request to the support application's API endpoint with the necessary details, a new ticket can be created automatically.

* Posting a notification on a web page: If the web page has an API that accepts POST requests, Splunk can send data to it, resulting in a notification being displayed.

* Posting a message in a chatroom: Many chat platforms offer webhook integrations where POST requests can send messages to specific channels or chatrooms.

However, retrieving data from a web page is not within the capabilities of a webhook. Webhooks are designed for outbound communication (sending data) and do not handle inbound requests or data retrieval. To fetch or retrieve data from external sources, other methods such as scripted inputs or custom scripts would be required.

NEW QUESTION # 100

Which of the following is a valid event action in Splunk?

- A. Execute an eval statement.

- B. Create a new REST API endpoint.
- C. Edit an event in the raw data.
- D. Execute a stats statement.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In Splunk, event actions are operations that can be performed on events within the Search & Reporting app.

One valid event action is executing an eval statement, which allows users to compute and add new fields to events dynamically.

According to Splunk Documentation:

"You can define workflow actions that perform tasks such as running a search, opening a URL, or executing an eval expression."
