NEW QUESTION # 60

A client wants to upgrade their AV system in a boardroom and add control of the lights and shades to the control panel. What information is MOST relevant to gather to enable this integration?

- A. color temperature
- B. warranty information
- C. number of IR ports
- D. communications protocols

Answer: D

Explanation:

When upgrading an AV system in a boardroom and adding control of the lights and shades to the control panel, the most relevant information to gather is the communications protocols. Understanding the protocols used by the lighting and shading systems ensures compatibility with the AV control panel, enabling seamless integration. Axis Technology Specialist documentation highlights the necessity of knowing communication protocols to ensure different systems can interact correctly and be managed from a unified control interface.

NEW QUESTION # 61

When specifying a paging system for a large building, what kind of speaker system should be recommended?

- A. line array
- B. constant voltage
- C. near field
- D. direct coupled

Answer: B

Explanation:

Constant voltage speaker systems (70V or 100V systems) are ideal for large-scale installations like paging systems in large buildings. These systems allow easy distribution over long distances with minimal signal loss and support multiple speakers connected to the same amplifier. Near field (Option A) is for close-proximity applications. Line arrays (Option B) are used in concert settings, and direct-coupled systems (Option C) are not as efficient for large-scale distributed audio.

NEW QUESTION # 62

Ambient noise PRIMARILY affects desired sound by

- A. enhancing it.
- B. interfering with it.
- C. complementing it.
- D. canceling it out.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive Detailed Explanation with all Technology Specialist References:

Ambient noise is any unwanted background sound that can interfere with the clarity and intelligibility of the desired audio signal. In an AV setting, ambient noise can reduce speech intelligibility, making it harder for the audience to understand the speaker or experience the audio as intended.

Option B, "canceling it out," would refer to techniques like active noise cancellation, which isn't the primary effect of ambient noise on sound but rather a solution to it. Options A and D, "enhancing" and "complementing," are not applicable because ambient noise typically detracts from audio quality rather than adding to it.

NEW QUESTION # 63

The limits of the vertical visual field indicate that displays should be positioned where in relation to the viewers' standard line of sight?

- A. bottom of the image is no more than 30 degrees below
- B. center of the image is precisely on-axis
- C. top of the image is no more than 30 degrees above
- D. center of the image is at least 10 degrees above

Answer: C

Explanation:

For optimal viewing comfort, the top of a display should not be positioned more than 30 degrees above the viewer's line of sight. This guideline ensures that viewers do not have to strain their necks to see the entire screen. While Options A and B might seem reasonable, 30 degrees is considered the upper limit for comfortable viewing, with viewers ideally positioned to see the full display without needing to look up excessively.

NEW QUESTION # 64

What is the PRIMARY advantage of preventive maintenance?

- A. upfront costs
- B. less equipment downtime
- C. system fail proof
- D. better system performance

Answer: B

Explanation:

The primary advantage of preventive maintenance is reducing equipment downtime. By regularly maintaining and servicing equipment, potential issues can be identified and resolved before they lead to failures. This proactive approach ensures that systems remain operational and reduces the likelihood of unexpected breakdowns, which can be costly and disruptive. Preventive maintenance helps in maintaining system reliability and efficiency, ultimately contributing to better performance and longer equipment lifespan.
