Cisco Designing and Implementing Secure Cloud Access for Users and Endpoints Sample Questions (Q33-Q38):

NEW QUESTION # 33

A network administrator uses Cisco Umbrella to protect internal users from malicious content. A customer is using an IPsec tunnel to connect to an Umbrella Organization. The administrator was informed about a zero-day vulnerability that infects user machines and uploads sensitive data through the RDP port. The administrator must ensure that no users are connected to the internet using the RDP protocol. Which Umbrella configuration must the administrator apply?

- A. Data loss prevention policy to block all file uploads with RDP application mime type
- B. DNS policy to block Remote Desktop Manager application type
- C. Web policy to block Remote Desktop Manager application type
- D. Firewall policy and set port 3389 to be blocked for all outgoing traffic

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Remote Desktop Protocol (RDP) uses TCP port 3389. Cisco Umbrella includes a cloud-delivered firewall that can be used to block outbound traffic by port. In this case, since the RDP communication needs to be prevented regardless of application name resolution, the best approach is to use a Firewall policy in Umbrella to block port 3389 traffic across the tunnel.
