CompTIA Cloud+ (2025) Sample Questions (Q86-Q91):

NEW QUESTION # 86
Which of the following describes the main difference between public and private container repositories?

- A. Private container repositories are used to obfuscate the content of the Dockerfile, while public container repositories allow for Dockerfile inspection.
- B. Private container repositories must use proprietary licenses, while public container repositories must have open-source licenses.
- C. Private container repository access requires authorization, while public repository access does not require authorization.
- D. Private container repositories are hidden by default and containers must be directly referenced, while public container repositories allow browsing of container images.

Answer: C

Explanation:
The main difference between public and private container repositories lies in access control.
Public repositories allow users to download and use container images without requiring any authorization, making them accessible to anyone. On the other hand, private repositories require users to have proper authorization, usually through credentials, to access the container images, thus providing a level of privacy and security control.

NEW QUESTION # 87
Which of the following storage types requires immediate access to backup data in case of a disaster?

- A. Archive
- B. Hot
- C. Cold
- D. Warm

Answer: B

Explanation:
Hot storage provides immediate, high-speed access to data, making it the appropriate choice for disaster recovery scenarios where backup data must be available without delay.

NEW QUESTION # 88
A cloud architect is deploying a web application that contains many large images and will be accessed on two containers. Which of the following will MOST improve the user experience while keeping costs low?

- A. Implement web servers in both continents and set up a VPN between the VPCs.
- B. Implement a CDN and offload the images to an object storage.
- C. Implement a replica of the entire solution on every continent.
- D. Implement web servers on both continents and peer the VPCs.

Answer: B

Explanation:
A CDN (content delivery network) is a network of servers that are distributed around the world.
When a user requests a web page, the CDN will deliver the page from the server that is closest to the user. This can significantly improve the user experience by reducing the amount of time it takes to load the page.
Object storage is a type of storage that is designed to store large amounts of data. It is typically used for storing images, videos, and other media files. Offloading the images to object storage will free up space on the web servers, which can improve performance and reduce costs.

NEW QUESTION # 89
Which of the following do developers use to keep track of changes made during software development projects?

- A. Code control
- B. Code versioning
- C. Code testing
- D. Code drifting

Answer: B

Explanation:
Developers use code versioning to keep track of changes made during software development projects. It is a system that records changes to a file or set of files over time so that specific versions can be recalled later.

NEW QUESTION # 90
A cloud server needs to automatically allocate more resources during sudden peak times. This allocation does not need to occur in regular intervals. Which of the following scaling approaches should be used?

- A. Event
- B. Manual
- C. Trending
- D. Scheduled

Answer: A

Explanation:
Event-based scaling is designed to allocate more resources automatically in response to specific events, such as sudden peak times that are not regular or predictable. This type of scaling ensures that resources are available when needed without the need to schedule them in advance or adjust them manually.
