SAP Certified - Database Administrator - SAP HANA Sample Questions (Q167-Q172):

NEW QUESTION # 167

A precision equipment manufacturer is moving selected database workloads from on-premises SAP HANA to SAP HANA Cloud in controlled phases. The next transition wave is technically ready, but the administration team finds that the target cloud environment has been prepared while the operational acceptance criteria are still written only for the on-premises model.

As a result, the migration checklist confirms technical completion but gives no clear decision point for cloud-side monitoring and support readiness. Management wants the transition wave to proceed this month, but it also wants to avoid repeating a pattern where migrated workloads immediately require corrective operational follow-up.

What is the best action before closing the next transition wave?

- A. Close the wave based on technical migration completion and add the cloud-side support criteria after productive use begins.
- B. Return the prepared target workload to the on-premises roadmap because mixed-environment acceptance criteria always create unnecessary complexity.

- C. Stop the migration program entirely until a single permanent operating model can be agreed for both environments.
- D. Add target-environment operational acceptance checks for monitoring, support readiness, and handover before declaring the wave complete.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Feedback:

This is the required modernization drill, but the tension is different from prior runbook-ownership patterns. Here the gap is missing acceptance criteria for the target environment. Technical readiness alone is insufficient because the wave needs a valid cloud-side operational closure point. Adding monitoring, support-readiness, and handover criteria before declaring the wave complete reduces transition risk while preserving the phased modernization approach.

NEW QUESTION # 168

CHALLENGE 4 - SIT Recovery Evidence Sequencing

The SIT lead can release the next cycle on schedule using backup completion evidence, or delay the release briefly to include recovery validation for the installed test database and recoverability evidence for the upgraded system. Which path is most defensible?

- A. Release on schedule and attach recovery evidence to the later SAP HANA Cloud migration plan.
- B. Delay briefly to complete recovery evidence for the systems included in the next SIT cycle.
- C. Cancel the second SIT cycle because recovery validation was not completed before the first run.
- D. Release on schedule because schedule discipline is the highest priority during SIT.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Feedback:

A brief delay is most defensible because it completes recoverability evidence for systems used in the next SIT cycle. This reflects governance-vs-governance prioritization between schedule control and continuity evidence.

NEW QUESTION # 169

CHALLENGE 1 - First Close Configuration Traceability

During first close rehearsal, claims analytics reports load successfully from the upgraded SAP HANA system. The final administration record does not show whether the post-upgrade configuration adjustment was active during the rehearsal. What should the administrator do before accepting the close reporting evidence?

- A. Remove the configuration adjustment from the review because reports loaded successfully.
- B. Accept the evidence because successful report loading confirms close readiness.
- C. Reconcile the active configuration state with the final administration record before sign-off.
- D. Apply the SAP HANA Cloud setting to the upgraded system to standardize the landscape.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Feedback:

The administrator should reconcile the active configuration state with the final administration record before accepting the close evidence. Successful report loading does not confirm that the reporting result is tied to a documented SAP HANA database state.

NEW QUESTION # 170

CHALLENGE 2 - Restoration Simulation Monitoring Baseline

The monitoring dashboard shows acceptable daytime availability, but restoration simulation behavior varies after hours. The alert thresholds may still reflect the earlier operational reporting profile. Which action best supports a reliable UAT conclusion?

- A. Confirm threshold relevance for the restoration simulation workload before interpreting the dashboard trend.
- B. Tune the after-hours workload first and update monitoring evidence after the release decision.
- C. Treat daytime availability as sufficient because the database remained reachable.
- D. Increase all alert thresholds so the second UAT run avoids unnecessary performance warnings.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Feedback:

Threshold relevance should be confirmed before interpreting the dashboard trend. The scenario shows that inherited thresholds can distort how restoration simulation behavior is understood.

NEW QUESTION # 171

CHALLENGE 4 - Regional Release Recovery Assurance

The remediation lead can release the regional template on schedule using backup completion evidence, or delay briefly to include recovery validation for the remediation database and recoverability evidence for the upgraded system. Which path is most defensible?

- A. Delay briefly to complete recoverability evidence for systems supporting the regional release.
- B. Release on schedule because meeting the template date is the strongest governance outcome.
- C. Release on schedule and attach recovery validation to the future SAP HANA Cloud migration plan.
- D. Cancel the regional release because recovery validation was not completed before testing began.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Feedback:

A brief delay is most defensible because it completes recoverability evidence for systems supporting the regional release. This balances schedule governance with operational resilience evidence.
