Cisco Implementing and Operating Cisco Security Core Technologies Sample Questions (Q250-Q255):

NEW QUESTION # 250

Which DevSecOps implementation process gives a weekly or daily update instead of monthly or quarterly in the applications?

- A. CI/CD pipeline
- B. Security
- C. Container
- D. Orchestration

Answer: A

Explanation:

Unlike the traditional software life cycle, the CI/CD implementation process gives a weekly or daily update instead of monthly or quarterly. The fun part is customers won't even realize the update is in their applications, as they happen on the fly.

NEW QUESTION # 251

An engineer is adding a Cisco router to an existing environment. NTP authentication is configured on all devices in the environment with the command `ntp authentication-key 1 md5 Clsc427128380`. There are two routers on the network that are configured as NTP servers for redundancy, 192.168.1.110 and 192.168.1.111. 192.168.1.110 is configured as the authoritative time source. What command must be configured on the new router to use 192.168.1.110 as its primary time source without the new router attempting to offer time to existing devices?

- A. `ntp peer 192.168.1.110 key 1 primary`
- B. `ntp peer 192.168.1.110 prefer key 1`
- C. `ntp server 192.168.1.110 primary key 1`
- D. `ntp server 192.168.1.110 key 1 prefer`

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 252

In which two ways does the Cisco Advanced Phishing Protection solution protect users? (Choose two.)

- A. It automatically removes malicious emails from users' inbox.
- B. It prevents use of compromised accounts and social engineering.
- C. It secures all passwords that are shared in video conferences.
- D. It prevents all zero-day attacks coming from the Internet.
- E. It prevents trojan horse malware using sensors.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Cisco Advanced Phishing Protection (AAP) is a solution that adds sophisticated machine learning capabilities to Cisco Email Security to block advanced identity deception attacks for inbound email by assessing its threat posture<sup>1</sup>. It also uses both global and local telemetry data combined with analytics and modeling to validate the reputation and authenticity of senders<sup>2</sup>. AAP provides sender authentication and BEC detection capabilities, and uses advanced machine learning techniques, real-time behavior analytics, relationship modeling and telemetry to protect against identity deception-based threats<sup>3</sup>.

In two ways, the Cisco Advanced Phishing Protection solution protects users:

- * It prevents use of compromised accounts and social engineering. AAP detects and blocks phishing emails that attempt to impersonate legitimate senders, such as executives, partners, or customers, and trick users into revealing sensitive information or transferring funds. AAP analyzes the sender's identity, behavior, and relationship with the recipient, and assigns a risk score to the email. If the email is deemed suspicious or malicious, AAP can quarantine it, flag it, or deliver it with a warning<sup>4</sup>.
- * It automatically removes malicious emails from users' inbox. AAP provides retrospective analysis and remediation capabilities, which means that it can identify and remove emails that were initially delivered but later found to be malicious. AAP leverages the Cisco Talos threat intelligence network and the Sensor-based solution to continuously monitor the threat landscape and update the email disposition accordingly. If an email is reclassified as malicious, AAP can automatically delete it from the users' inbox, or notify the administrator or the user to take action<sup>5</sup>.

The other options are incorrect because they do not accurately describe the functions of AAP. AAP does not prevent all zero-day attacks coming from the Internet, as it focuses on phishing and identity deception attacks.

AAP does not prevent trojan horse malware using sensors, as sensors are used to collect and analyze email data, not to block malware. AAP does not secure all passwords that are shared in video conferences, as it is not related to video conferencing security. Therefore, the correct answer is A and C. References:
