CWNP Certified Wireless Analysis Professional Sample Questions (Q103-Q108):

NEW QUESTION # 103

What is the default 802.11 authentication method for a STA when using Pre-RSNA?

- A. Open System
- B. Shared Key
- C. 4-Way Handshake
- D. PSK

Answer: A

Explanation:

The default 802.11 authentication method for a STA when using Pre-RSNA is Open System. This is the simplest and most common authentication method, which does not provide any security or encryption. In Open System authentication, the STA sends an Authentication Request frame to the AP, and the AP responds with an Authentication Response frame with a status code of success. After this, the STA can proceed to association with the AP. NEW QUESTION # 104

When configuring a long-term, forensic packet capture and saving all packets to disk which of the following is not a consideration?

- A. Real-time packet decodes
- B. Total capture storage space
- C. Individual trace file size
- D. Analyzer location

Answer: A

Explanation:

In long-term forensic captures, the priority is reliably capturing and storing all packets without loss. Considerations such as total storage capacity, file size management, and analyzer placement directly affect data retention and capture integrity. Real-time packet decoding is not required because analysis can be performed later on the saved data, making it unnecessary during continuous forensic collection.

NEW QUESTION # 105

Which one of the following provides the most accurate indication that packets have not been successfully received by the intended recipient?

- A. Data packets being sent at low data rates
- B. Retries
- C. Gaps in sequence numbers
- D. CRC errors

Answer: C

Explanation:

Gaps in sequence numbers in captured frames indicate that one or more packets were not successfully received by the intended recipient, providing a direct and reliable indication of lost frames. CRC errors or retries suggest issues but do not always confirm packet loss to the receiver.

NEW QUESTION # 106

You are troubleshooting a client that is experiencing slow WLAN performance. As part of the troubleshooting activity, you start a packet capture on your laptop close to the client device. While analyzing the packets, you suspect that you have not captured all packets transmitted by the client. By analyzing the trace file, how can you confirm if you have missing packets?

- A. The missing packets will be shown as CRC errored packets
- B. Protocol Analyzers show the number of missing packets in their statistics view
- C. Look for gaps in the sequence number in MAC headers
- D. Retransmission are an indication of missing packets

Answer: C

Explanation:

Each 802.11 data frame includes a sequence number in the MAC header that increments for successive frames within a traffic stream. If sequence numbers are not consecutive and there are gaps without corresponding retransmissions, this indicates that some frames were transmitted but not captured by the analyzer, confirming missing packets in the trace.

NEW QUESTION # 107

How many address fields does an ACK frame contain?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: C

Explanation:

An ACK frame is a control frame used to acknowledge receipt of a data or management frame. It contains only a single address field, the Receiver Address (RA), which identifies the station being acknowledged.
