Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

In Microsoft Azure AI Language Service, both Named Entity Recognition (NER) and Key Phrase Extraction are core features for text analytics. They serve distinct purposes in analyzing and structuring unstructured text data.

* Named Entity Recognition (NER):NER is used to identify and categorize specific entities within text, such as people, organizations, locations, dates, times, and quantities. According to Microsoft Learn's

"Analyze text with Azure AI Language" module, NER scans text to extract these entities along with their types. Therefore, the statement "Named entity recognition can be used to retrieve dates and times in a text string" is True (Yes).

* Key Phrase Extraction:This feature identifies the most important phrases or main topics in a block of text. It is useful for summarization or highlighting central ideas without classifying them into specific categories. Therefore, the statement "Key phrase extraction can be used to retrieve important phrases in a text string" is also True (Yes).

* City Name Retrieval:While key phrase extraction highlights major phrases, it does not extract specific entities like cities or dates. Extracting such details requires Named Entity Recognition, which is designed to find named entities such as city names, people, or organizations. Hence, the statement "Key phrase extraction can be used to retrieve all the city names in a text string" is False (No).
