NEW QUESTION # 148
What Module Link type is used to access an Application Properties page?

- A. Script (from Arguments)
- B. HTML (from Arguments)
- C. URL (from Arguments)
- D. Single Record

Answer: C

Explanation:
A Module Link type defines how the module opens in the content pane when the user clicks on it in the navigation pane1. The URL (from Arguments) link type allows you to specify a URL that opens the Application Properties page for the selected application2. The URL can include arguments that are evaluated at runtime, such as the application name or scope3.

NEW QUESTION # 149
How many applications menus can an application have?

- A. 3, one for an application's user modules, one for an application's administrator modules, and one for the ServiceNow administrator's modules
- B. 2, one for an application's user modules and one for an application's administrator modules
- C. As many as the application design requires
- D. 1, which is used for all application modules

Answer: C

Explanation:
Reference:
An application can have as many application menus as the application design requires. An application menu is a container for application modules, which are links to features or functionalities within an application. Application menus are displayed in the application navigator, which is the left sidebar of the ServiceNow interface. Developers can create and configure application menus using Studio or the Application Menus module. Application menus can have different roles and visibility settings, depending on the intended audience and purpose of the application. NEW QUESTION # 150
When configuring a module, what does the Override application menu roles configuration option do?

- A. Self-Service users can access the module even though they do not have roles
- B. Users with the module role but without access to the application menu access the module
- C. Admin is given access to the module even if Access Controls would ordinarily prevent access
- D. Users with access to the application menu can see the module even if they don't have the module role

Answer: B

Explanation:
Checkbox tooltip: "Show this module when the user has the specified roles. Otherwise the user must have the roles specified by both the application menu and the module." The following is true for the Override application menu roles configuration option when configuring a module:
* Users with the module role but without access to the application menu access the module. This is true because the Override application menu roles option allows users to bypass the application menu role requirement and access the module directly if they have the module role. For example, if a module has
* the itil role and the Override application menu roles option enabled, and the application menu has the admin role, then a user who has the itil role but not the admin role can still access the module.
The following are not true for the Override application menu roles configuration option when configuring a module:
* Self-Service users can access the module even though they do not have roles. This is false because the Override application menu roles option does not grant access to the module to users who do not have any roles. Self-Service users are users who do not have any roles assigned to them and can only access the Self-Service portal and the Knowledge Base. To access the module, users need to have at least the module role.

* Admin is given access to the module even if Access Controls would ordinarily prevent access. This is false because the Override application menu roles option does not override the Access Control (ACL) rules that apply to the module. Access Control rules are used to restrict the access to the data and functionality of the ServiceNow platform based on the user's roles and conditions. Admin is a role

What is the best UX format to use for lists and forms?

- A. Standard
- B. Classic
- C. Forms
- D. Lists

Answer: B

Explanation:
there are only two types of UX options: Mobile and Classic. Classic is defined as "manage records via lists and form"
