A user is reporting that after they sign in to Gmail, their labels are not loading and buttons are not responsive. What action should you take to troubleshoot this issue with the user?

- A. Check whether the issue occurs when the user authenticates on a different device or a new incognito window.
- B. Check whether traceroute to service.gmail.com (pop.gmail.com or imap.gmail.com) is successful.
- C. Collect full message headers for examination.
- D. Check whether a ping test to service.gmail.com (pop.gmail.com or imap.gmail.com) is successful.

Answer: A

Explanation:

* Testing on Different Device or Incognito Window:

* This helps determine if the issue is related to the user's current device, browser, or cached data.

* Incognito mode runs a clean session without extensions or cached data, which can help identify if browser settings or cache are causing the issue.

* Steps to Test:

* Ask the user to sign in to Gmail on a different device (e.g., another computer or mobile phone).

* Alternatively, instruct the user to open a new incognito or private browsing window in their browser and sign in to Gmail.

* Observe if the problem persists in these different environments.

NEW QUESTION # 95

Your organization needs an approval application for purchases where a user can enter information on the purchase required and then submit it for management approval. You need to suggest a solution to create the application that must be available on both the web and mobile devices. Your organization does not have software developers or the budget to hire a third party. What should you do?

- A. Suggest that the organization continue to approve requests manually until budget is available to use a third-party application provider.
- B. Suggest that the organization use AppScript to create forms linked to a Google Sheet to store the purchase data.
- C. Suggest that the organization develop an application internally with a database, a backend service for data retrieval, and a frontend service for the application's user interface.
- D. Suggest the organization use AppSheet to create the application.

Answer: D
